CONDITIONS are a little worse in China; there is room to continue getting worse in so big a country. More towns captured by savage, determined gentlemen from Canton; British marines clashing with natives; one Englishman robbed and beaten. The British won't stand too much of that.

VESUVIUS is in eruption, many shocks like earthquakes, horrible flame pouring out.

Mussolini, powerful as Vesuvius and always in eruption, is planning new treaties in the Balkans, building strategic highways in Albania, after the fashion of Caesar. He keeps going.

RUSSIA discusses the Czar's debt with France and may pay something to help business. She might even pay our boybankers of Wall Street that bought Kerensky's bonds. It's worth paying forty millions to borrow five hundred millions.

WINTER COMING BACK FOR LAST VISIT HERE

Shrinking the mercury with his icy breath in a wide swath across the country, Winter, according to the local Weatherman, will arrive here tomorrow night to attend personally to his official demise Monday.

The abnormally high temperatures prevalent for the past ten days through the west and northwest have shriveled to near-zero marks, dire omen of a cold wave for New England within 48 hours.

Intermittent rains, the tail-end of a storm area in the Ohio Valley, are prophesied to dampen these parts either tonight or early tomorrow, accompanied by a gradual fall in temperature.

MOVIE COMPETITION OFF TO BIG START MONDAY

For making a clipping from each day's Boston Evening American for twenty-four days, jotting down the title of a motion picture play and the name of a motion picture player, and writing a very short letter, some reader of the Boston Evening American is to be presented with a tour of the Caribbean Sea for two persons.

The "Who's Who in the Movies" competition will begin in these columns on Monday, the day after tomorrow.

FIRST AWARD: 25-day tour of the Golden Caribbean, visiting Cuba, Jamaica and Central American points; all expenses paid, for TWO.

SECOND AWARD: Ford sedan, latest type.

THIRD AWARD: Factory-built Browning-Drake radio set; made in New England; one of the best made anywhere.

90 HURT IN PATH OF STORM

Little Rock, Ark., March 19.—A checkup of deaths in the tornadoes which swept Missouri and Arkansas towns last night today showed at least 49 persons killed and approximately 90 persons injured.

St. Louis, March 19 (A.P.).—Approximately 30 persons were killed and 75 injured by the tornado which struck Green Forest, Ark., and vicinity last night, says a telegram received here today by the American Red Cross from L. T. Sweat, chairman of the Carroll County chapter, at Eureka Springs, Ark.

Sweat estimated the property loss at $100,000. He urged financial assistance and asked that the National Red Cross organization take over the disaster relief.

A telegram received shortly afterwards from R. J. Rosewater, secretary of the Caroll County chapter, said the extent of the disaster was "much greater than at first appeared." He said nurses were urgently needed at Eureka Springs hospitals and at improvised hospitals at Green Forest.

A fire broke out following the tornado, adding considerably to the damage.

Nine were reported killed at Denver, Ark., a village about twelve miles northeast of Green Forest, which is 190 miles south of here.

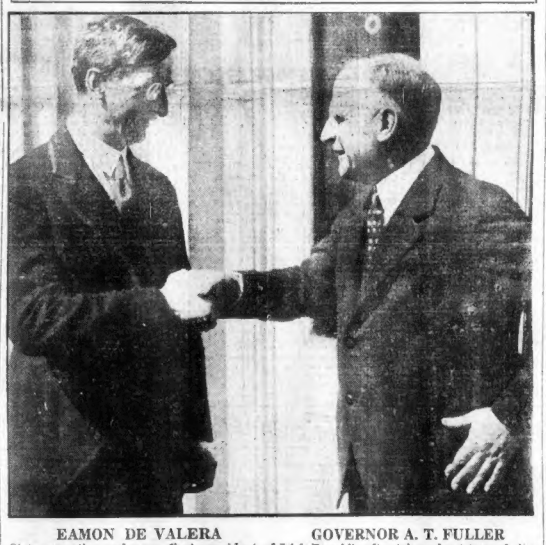
FULLER GREETS IRISH LEADER



EAMON DE VALERA — GOVERNOR A. T. FULLER

State executive welcomes first president of Irish Republic after triumphant tour of city and visit to City Hall.

GOVERNOR, MAYOR AND CARDINAL WELCOME IRISH VISITOR TO N. E.

With flags waving, women screaming and men shouting, Boston sons and daughters of Old Erin today welcomed Eamon De Valera, Irish Republican leader, at the South Station, while later other crowds acclaimed him at the State House and at City Hall.

Into the midst of a crowd of 2,000 men, women and children the tall Irish soldier-statesman-professor stepped when he alighted at the station from the train that brought him from Philadelphia.

Following a parade of 30 autos to the Copley-Plaza Hotel, the noted visitor went to the State Capitol and then to City Hall, where cordial greetings were accorded him by Governor Fuller and Mayor Nichols respectively.

De Valera also called on Cardinal O'Connell at the latter's residence in Rawson road, Brookline.

"Any champion of the cause of freedom will always be welcome here."

These were the words of the Governor as he shook De Valera's hand and they brought a resounding cheer from the crowd that trekked

BATES STUDENT KILLS SELF AS HE WRITES DAD

New London, Ct., March 19 (A.P.).—Alonzo Oswell Brown, twenty, missing student of Bates College, Lewiston, Me., committed suicide by gas early today in an apartment he had rented here two days ago.

He let an uncompleted note to his father, evidently penned as the gas from an open range gradually overcame him.

A book found in the room entitled "Your friend to friend" bore the inscription from Professor G. N. Robinson of Lewiston, Maine, to his "Son," A. Oswell Brown of Bates College.

Some of the lines in the book follow:

"The man who attempts to sneak through life without giving a fair exchange for what he receives should be held for larceny."

"The loss of a friend is rightly counted as one of life's tragedies."

Lewiston, Me., March 19.—Alonzo O. Brown, Bates College student, who committed suicide at New London, Ct., is the son of Dr. Cecil R. Brown of Portland. He was one of the few outstanding students in the college and had won prizes in many subjects. He was an assistant instructor in mathematics and physics.

CAPTURE OF SHANGHAI IN 48 HOURS, FORECAST

Shanghai, March 19.—Competent observers believe the Nationalist will occupy Shanghai within 48 hours.

The Associated Press correspondent, visiting the Shanghai offensive tonight, found the British troops on the alert, ready to repel any incursions into the international settlement.

Railway men said it was impossible to guarantee passage from Shanghai in any direction, meaning the city is cut off on all sides except for water navigation.

The correspondent, in a journey through the Chinese controlled parts of the city, found all houses closed and the streets deserted, except for police and soldiers.

A public auditorium to be built on a site close to the Fens at a cost approximately $3,000,000 will be erected in Boston if Mayor Nichols can see his way clear to get the money appropriated by the City Council within the next two years, it was stated at City Hall today.

De Valera Hits British Taxes, Big Army

By MARK McINTYRE

"Ireland has exchanged a landlord for a tax collector."

That is the explanation of Erin's present financial difficulties as explained by Eamon De Valera in an exclusive interview with the Boston Evening American today.

"With less than 4,000,000 population, Ireland is spending more money to maintain two governorgenerals than the United States is expending to maintain President Coolidge," said De Valera.

"The governor-general in the south gets a salary equivalent to $50,000. The governor-general in the north gets $40,000. This does not include the cost of upkeeping their lodges."

De Valera was going in to breakfast when a Boston American reporter boarded his train at Providence. Smiling as usual, a little more tired-looking than on his last visit here, but still the same brilliant leader, De Valera hurried through breakfast in the dining car giving facts and figures between mouthfuls.

"It is hard to make Americans or Irishmen in America realize what is happening in Ireland," he said. "British propaganda has so befogged the real situation that most people have no idea of what Ireland is like today.

"Just to illustrate one of the causes for the high taxation the Free State at present is maintaining a standing army of 13,000 men. Why?

SWITZER SURRENDERS IN WELLESLEY THEFT

Gilbert K. Switzer, former bookkeeper at Wellesley College, was arrested today in connection with the shortage of $12,000 in the funds of the college.

Switzer voluntarily gave himself up at the East Dedham Jail, where his wife furnished $5,000 bail for his appearance in court on Monday morning.

Chief of Police Harry M. Kingsbury of Wellesley, who served the warrant, made the startling statement before that arrest that Switzer was being made the "goat," and that there were others "higher up" who had more to do with the shortage of the college funds than the accused bookkeeper.

"News of the robbery was intentionally permitted to leak out some days ago in the hope that Switzer would flee, and thus be the goat," declared the chief, "but he didn't run away as was expected."

Switzer was not at home when Chief Kingsbury returned from Dedham with the warrant. Shortly after noon, however, the chief returned to East Dedham where he met Switzer and his wife at the Norfolk County Jail. The Switzers were accompanied by their attorney from the law into the State House behind the visiting party.

State detectives in plain clothes watched about the executive suite at the state House to guard against possible trouble during De Valera's visit there. This is a precaution rarely taken.

Mayor Nichols presented De Valera a pot of shamrock taken from the estate of John Boyle O'Reilly in Ireland and nurtured in the Hub under the direction of the park department.

As he left City Hall the popular Irishman was given another ovation by a crowd of 1,000 persons.

The parting sally of the Governor as he bade farewell to De Valera at the State House was that he intended taking a trip to kiss the blarney stone some day. He also offered to do everything within his power to make the Irish leader's visit here a pleasant one.

CHATS WITH CARDINAL.

The chat between Cardinal O'Connell and De Valera was a friendly discussion of Irish affairs. The Cardinal greeted his visitor warmly. He stated that he was not taking sides in a political question but was manifesting his natural interest in the affairs of Ireland, arising from love and affection for the Irish race.

He remarked that while many persons of Irish descent in the United States are interested in the problems confronting Ireland, nevertheless they are primarily loyal Americans with an intense first of all in the government of this country.

"Still, I know that anything pertaining to Ireland is dear to their hearts, as to mine," said the Cardinal.

"The reports that I have received from Ireland, especially from the clergy, are very encouraging and pleasing. I have no doubt, of course, that Ireland feels at the best of times quite unity which we hope will come some day, with God's blessing.

"So much has been accomplished that we have high hopes that the day will come when Ireland may have a larger security of national freedom. This requires patience."

DE VALERA EXPLAINS STAND.

De Valera then explained the stand taken by himself and other Irish Republicans on the situation.

The Cardinal asked: "Without denying the fundamental principles of right, may not accept for the being something which may lead to a better understanding?"

He also asked De Valera his views on present relations with the British people, remarking that many Britons seem accord with the principles of Irish freedom. He said:

"They have risen, on the one hand, when brutality was committed, times which naturally remain vivid in our memories.

"God guide us all and let us pray to him to bring about a day of better understanding, when Ireland will have settled internal troubles and established herself on friendly terms with her neighbors, without sacrificing her noble principles."

De Valera said that England has made it impossible for her to avoid infringing on the rights of the Irish people.

PUBLIC RECEPTION.

A public reception at the Copley-Plaza, lasting through the afternoon, followed the official welcome. This was but one more in a series of receptions which came to an end tomorrow evening, when he will speak at Symphony Hall.

Like a triumphant hero De Valera was his reception with spontaneous welcomes as he rode through the streets of the city, recognized everywhere by the dense crowds.

The roar at the railroad terminal was terrific upon his arrival in the Hub.

He was surrounded quickly by a throng why policemen vainly attempting to hold the crowd in check. The official reception committee tried to lead him to a waiting automobile outside and hundreds on every side thrusting or shaking the hand of the man who was first president of the Irish Republic.

Side by side with the Stars and Stripes, the Irish Republican flag in striped green, yellow and white, waved from countless hands over the heads of the crowd, and shouts of welcome arose high above their heads so that the little ones can say in later years they saw De Valera.

The visitor finally following the ceremonies of welcome in a taxi through the station toward the State House, where he stopped time after time to return with warmness and cordiality the clasps of men and women who managed to grasp him and as he passed.

Once outside, in an automobile at the head a line of thirty cars, De Valera was paraded through the streets to the Copley-Plaza for a rest.

THOUSANDS LINE STREETS.

Thousands on the sidewalks along Summer, Winter, Tremont and Boylston streets stopped to watch as the line of automobiles passed. De Valera, conspicuous and easily recognizable because of his commanding height, sat in the rear seat of an uncovered touring car.

He was overjoyed at the warm welcome that Boston gave him and he smiled genially throughout the demonstration. Tired from many public addresses and receptions elsewhere, he postponed the rest to sound the keynote of his Republican views.

"There is no doubt that if the people of Ireland were allowed to express their own views and choose their own form of government, a majority would choose a republic," he declared.

He made it plain that his purpose in coming to America, the sole purpose, was to testify in New York where there is a court contest over the rights to the huge fund raised in this country for Ireland. The Republicans and the Irish Free State leaders both claim this fund. There was no Irish Free State when the fund was collected.

"I am merely taking the opportunity, while here, of seeing my old friends," he said. "Actually I am expected and called upon to explain the Irish situation.

"Boston is particularly dear to my heart. I have numberless friends here and I am glad beyond words to be among them."

Although obviously weary, he spoke with enthusiasm and his piercing eyes flashed as he launched into a brief summation of the Republican point of view on Irish politics, saying:

"Our country was partitioned and the treaty imposed against the will of a majority of the Irish people. Ireland is now compelled to contribute $25,000,000 yearly to England and that sum is taken out of the pockets of the people of Ireland and exported to England to meet the obligations of the United Kingdom.

"Our position is that, if the United Kingdom is bankrupt, Ireland has been victimized. If the United Kingdom is not bankrupt, Ireland has not benefited properly by her assets.

DEMANDS RIGHT TO CHOOSE.

"Ireland has, on the other hand, inherited the liabilities of the United Kingdom under the present arrangement.

"Our demand is that a majority of the Irish people be freely allowed to choose their own form of government. The people have never been permitted to do this and the present treaty was imposed on them by threat of war.

"If allowed to choose freely, the people would choose a Republic. Or that I have not the slightest doubt. We want no wars, but neither do we want Ireland used as a cockpit for foreign spoliation."

Heading the reception committee was John T. Hughes, attorney, of Brookline; Dr. James P. Tynan, State president of the A. A. R. I. R.; Dr. James T. Gallagher of Charlestown; Michael A. O'Reilly, State secretary; Sinn Fein leaders and many other well known men.

Among the women welcoming the Irish leader were Elizabeth Needham national vice-president of the A. A. R. I. R.; Catherine Walsh and Margaret Kerrigan, active in Irish women's associations.

Irish Chieftain Hits Back at Dual British Rule

The economic situation is very bad and emigration is steadily growing.

"Irishmen don't want a government of rubber stamps, and the present government is just that. The single item of maintaining 15,000 men is a burden too great for the small population of Ireland.

"Before the treaty, bank deposits in Ireland totalled $340,000,000. Today they total $740,000,000. The figures show that the bank deposits are being eaten up. The British financial policy still rules Ireland.

"Regardless of propaganda and rosy-hued reports of prosperity under the Free State government, it is a fact that Ireland is merely being used as a bullock ranch for England. The simile is that it takes only a man and a dog to care for a large number of bullocks. England needs a market garden close to home. Ireland is the farm.

POPULATION ON WANE.

"Ireland, with the exception of two or three countries which suffered from the war, is the only country in the world today whose population is steadily diminishing.

"That is a fact despite the important fact that her birth rate is one of the highest in the world. Her population has decreased from 8,500,000 to 4,225,000.

"We are not pleading poverty to the world and we ask nothing but that the foreigner take his hands off. That is the only thing which will allow Ireland to progress.

"Take, for example, your own country. She won her freedom. At the time she had a population of about 3,000,000. Canada was in an equal state at the time. Why has not Canada grown as the United States? I claim the big reason is that Canada has not what America has—freedom.

"It may surprise you, but even although the British government in Ireland was extravagant, the present government, supposedly by Irishmen for Ireland, is almost twice as expensive.

"Taxation is nearly double what it was even during the war years, 1914 to 1919.

"Another thing to be noted is that $26,000,000 of the total taxes collected each year is sent to England under the terms of the treaty. There is no return for that.

"Mind you we would not complain if this money were being used to better conditions in Ireland. If much of it were spent in social service and betterment of conditions throughout the country, then it might be justified to a certain degree.

WHY ASK ENGLAND?

"But the important fact is, the money is eaten up by the standing army, the tribute to England and the high salaries.

"The $26,000,000 to England is a greater sum than she pays to America for war debts. And England has her reparations from Germany to go toward paying the war debts. Ireland has to take it out of each individual within her shores.

"Political freedom is necessary before economic and financial freedom is possible. Why does Ireland have to ask permission of England before acting if she has freedom?"

Here the Irish leader paused and after a while said: "Why are Irishmen, supposed to be free, forced to take an oath of allegiance to England? What would England do if the majority of Ireland's representatives refused to take the oath? Would England again use brute force?

TROUBLES VERY REAL.

"Those are the questions which are smouldering in the hearts of a majority of Irishmen today. The questions may be answered in the June elections. I cannot say what will be done, but if the election places a majority of loyal Irishmen who want political freedom in fact, not in fancy, then the world may again turn eyes towards Ireland's difficulties which have been glossed over and painted in bright colors.

"But these difficulties are very much present and very much real regardless of the false propaganda."

SERVE WARRANT ON BOOKKEEPER

offices of Nason & Proctor in Boston. The warrant was served on Switzer and bond was immediately offered by his wife. Within a few minutes Switzer and his wife started back to their home in Wellesley.

Switzer, a war veteran, is married and lives in Wellesley with his wife and child. He was employed at Wellesley College for a number of years, receiving a salary said to be between $40 and $50 a week.

The warrant for Switzer's arrest was sworn out at East Dedham Courthouse today by Francis J. Squires, clerk of courts. The warrant charges that Switzer "on or about September 25, 1926, at Wellesley, did steal money of value of more than $100, the property of Wellesley College."

The accused bookkeeper, for the past four years, has also been employed as bookkeeper for the Domestic Electric Company of Wellesley. According to Miles F. Robinson, treasurer of the company, Switzer left home today to obtain bail and as soon as the bond was arranged he would give himself up at East Dedham. Robinson said, following the dismissal of the bookkeeper at the college, some days ago, the accounts of the electric company were audited and every penny was accounted for.

Switzer has a sister-in-law, Miss Ruth Hingland, who is also employed in the office of Wellesley College. He was the only male employe in the office.

O'BRIEN WANTS DE VALERA TO TALK ON THE COMMON

Sapiro Admits He and Associates Got Million

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
International News Correspondent

Detroit, Mich., March 19.—Aaron Sapiro, so-called "wheat king," received in fees nearly $1,000,000 out of his dream of a national chain of farmers' cooperatives, he told International News Service today in reply to the charges leveled at him by Henry Ford's counsel in the million-dollar suit.

Sapiro cawfully explained that the million-dollar return from his dream represented the "gross earnings" of himself and his immediate associates and that it was in no sense the profit. He added: "It has taken every cent I have to fight this battle for vindication."

With the trial adjourned until Monday, Sapiro confirmed the estimate placed on his earnings by Senator James A. Reed (Democrat) of Missouri, who defended Ford's attack on the Sapiro co-operative plan.

At the same time, said Sapiro, the plan earned millions upon millions of dollars for the farmer members of his associations.

"Taking the whole period of my activity in organizing co-operatives," said Sapiro, "Senator Reed was very nearly correct in estimating my earnings at $1,000,000. I have been identified with this work from 1916 down to this moment. The big period in fees was from 1920 to 1924 inclusive.

$80,000 A YEAR

This would place Sapiro's earnings at an average of $80,000 a year for the twelve-year period. It was in 1924 that Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent opened its long series of attacks on the Sapiro plan and the "wheat king" admitted that his earnings depreciated considerably.

Sapiro's earnings included a $142,000 fee from the Tri-State Tobacco Association, $40,000 from the California Prune and Apricot Association, $40,000 from the Carolina peanut growers, $57,850 from the Kentucky dark leaf tobacco growers, $8,500 from the Burley tobacco growers and $17,500 from the Maine potato farmers, with numerous lesser fees.

Sapiro's counsel will maintain this was but half the story and that the alleged libels, published by Ford, actually did Sapiro a million dollars' worth of damage.

The man who rose from an orphan's home to almost a throne above American agriculture, declared he would show that his dream of a mighty chain of co-operatives from one end of America to the other, would have given permanent prosperity to American agriculture and a million dollars to himself.

LONDON TO ASK LEAGUE TO ACT IN SLAV WAR

Prague, March 19 (I.N.S.)—Czecho-Slovakian newspapers report that Tyrolean and Hungarian fascists, with the support of Italian fascists, encouraged by Mussolini, are preparing to "march on Vienna" for the purpose of wiping out the Socialists who control the capital.

The newspapers declare arms and munitions are arriving in Hungary from Italy.

Rome, March 19 (I.N.S.)—The Italian government announces officially it is taking no military steps as the result of reports that Jugo-Slavia is making war preparations.

Official quarters professed disbelief in reports of a Jugo-Slavian mobilization on the Albanian and Italian frontiers.

London, March 19 (I.N.S.)—Great Britain is prepared to ask the League of Nations to intervene if difficulties arise between Italy and Jugo-Slavia over Albania, it was stated today.

There is confidence in British circles, however, that the reported concentrations of troops in Jugo-Slavia will not lead to trouble.

London, March 19 (A.P.)—The Italian government, it was stated in official circles today, has notified the British government of its anxiety regarding the state of affairs on the Jugoslav-Albanian frontier.

Advices from Rome, yesterday, reported Jugoslavian troops were being mobilized along the border. The Jugoslav legation here today denied such mobilization. British official circles express the view that, as long as the great powers are united in the cause of peace, there is little danger to European tranquility.

JOHN L. MEANS, NOTED BOSTON LEADER, DIES

John H. Means, "grand old man" of South Boston, originator of the Evacuation Day celebrations, first representative of the Standard Oil Company in New England and for many years a powerful political leader in Massachusetts, is dead.

Mr. Means, who was 86, died today at his home, No. 27 Walker street, Atlantic.

A life-long resident of Boston, having been born in South Boston, Mr. Means for more than half a century was an outstanding figure in business and politics. He was one of the founders of the firm of Means & Thatcher, oil and paint dealers of Quincy, but for five years preceding his death he lived a retired life. On the death of his wife, several years ago, he moved from the homestead in South Boston and took quarters in a home near the business he had established.

BOYD LINKED IN WIFE SLAYING

Atlanta, Ga., March 19 (A.P.)—John Boyd, one of three men brought to Atlanta to serve 25 years for train robbery in Massachusetts, is believed by officials to have been identified as Stephen Suman, wanted in Philadelphia on the charge of wife murder. He was sent back to Philadelphia today on orders of Federal officials for investigation.

Boyd, John Andrews and the latter's son, Michael, were sentenced to 25 years each in Atlanta for robbing a train at Salisbury, Mass., on July 29, stealing packages containing $63,000 payrol of the factory at which the Andrews, father and son, were employed.

MOTHER WINS 'MISS' CUP

Although married and mother of a fine set of twins, as the picture shows, Mrs. Rose Regan, of No. 107 West Adams street, West Somerville, was awarded the "Miss Cambridge" cup by the North Cambridge Social Club.

SKIRTS SHORT AS EVER, OR MORE SO

Next week is Spring Fashion Week in Boston!

Boston's stores have taken on a gala attire for the first showings of what Miss 1927 must wear in this year's Easter parade.

The markets of the new and the old world have been combed for the latest creations in hats, cloaks, gowns, stockings, footwear and those things which in a less enlightened era were always referred to as "unmentionables."

Snug fitting, brimless hats and skirts short as ever or more so, but with considerably more fullness, are the outstanding features of the Spring styles.

The new hats are known as "skull caps," and these creations come in straw and soft felt and the color scheme runs the gamut of the spectrum.

For the gown, a profusion of bows, tiers, appliques and embroidery give the 1927 touch, while even the new coats have the tucking with blouse effect, silk throws and a fullness to allow wrapping of the figure.

The light colored chiffon stockings still hold the centre of the stage, although a gunmetal stocking with black heel indicates some slight swing toward the sombre hues that have been taboo for some years past.

Lizard or snake skin shoes predominate in the slippers for the 1927 girl.

CANTOR TO GET $8,000 WEEKLY FOR 18 MONTHS

Chicago, March 18 (A.P.)—Eddie Cantor said today he intended definitely to give up musical comedy for moving pictures.

He said he had a three-year contract at $8,000 a week for 18 months with the privilege of doing as he likes the remainder of the year. He was accompanied to Hollywood by Mrs. Cantor.

MOVIE KING AT HARVARD

BIG FIELD IN EDUCATION

Adolph Zukor, in Harvard University address, says motion pictures will soon take important place as educators.

3 IN AUTO DIVE INTO RIVER

Three persons escaped death as their automobile crashed through the rail on the Kernwood bridge, between Salem and Beverly, and plunged into the Danvers River.

They struck the river bed near the bank ther were able to crawl out of the car and wade ashore.

The three are George E. Vaughn of Hamilton, his wife, who was driving, and their daughter, Gladys, 14 years old.

The car crashed through the rail when Mrs. Vaughn swerved asite to avoid hitting a dog that ran across her path. Luckily it did not turn over, landing upright in the shallow part of the stream. The drop was about 15 feet.

WIFE PLANS NEW WEDDING AS HUSBAND AWAITS CHAIR

Chicago, March 19 (A.P.)—While her husband calmly hopes for a speedy death in the electric chair for killing his two children, Mrs. Marguerite Scholl, 27, his wife, disclosed today she is planning her next matrimonial venture with a Chicago attorney.

Mrs. Scholl was the foster mother of the two children.

FULLER SENDS 5 BILLS BACK TO LEGISLATURE

Governor Fuller today returned to the Legislature five bills which were before him for signature, on which the time limit expires at midnight. What action he took will not be made public until the Legislature convenes at 2 p. m. Monday. He may have vetoed them or suggested amendments.

The bills authorize the city of Worcester to borrow $2,000,000 for land damages for street improvements, increase the salary of the Mayor of Chelsea from $1,500 to $3,500, authorize the Granite Trust Company and Quincy Trust Company to establish additional branch offices in Quincy and authorize restoration of James J. Mahar to standing as an original member of the Boston retirement system.

The Merchant of Venice ~ Shakespeare's Immortal Drama

"How far that little candle throws his beams;
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

Shylock, having conspired against the life of a citizen by demanding a pound of Antonio's flesh, found his wealth confiscated, half to the State, half to Antonio. Antonio, ever gracious, gave his share to Shylock's daughter.

"You taught me how to beg, and now methinks
You teach me how a beggar should be answered."

Portia, disguised as the successful lawyer, asked Bassanio's ring as her reward. Bassanio refused, saying his wife had given it to him, but when she persisted he finally yielded the keepsake. Gratiano gave the clerk Nerissa's ring.

"Had you been there, I think you would have begged
The ring of me to give the worthy doctor."

Home again at Belmont, Portia pretended to be very angry with Bassanio for giving the "lawyer" the ring he had promised never to part with. Nerissa, Portia's maid, also pouted with her husband, Gratiano.

"Peace, ho! The moon sleeps with Endymion,
And would not be awaked!"

Portia at last disclosed that she was the young "lawyer," and Nerissa her clerk. Antonio received word that his ships had not been lost after all, so happiness reigned where tragedy had so lately threatened.

Prince Sent to Workhouse

New York, March 19 (I.N.S.)—Prince Michel Oodlensky, a Russian nobleman, was convicted of disorderly conduct in court here today and sentenced to serve ten days in the workhouse. He was arrested while haranguing a street crowd of men and women protesting, it is alleged, the wholesale destruction of the Jewish race.

LYNN FIREMAN SUSPENDED

Suspension from the fire department until April 1 was the punishment meted out today by Mayor Bauer of Lynn to Fireman John J. Fitzgibbons, who was shot in the thigh at the home of Mrs. Rose Houghton when she mistook him for a burglar.

Fitzgibbons' defence against charges brought by the Mayor was that he had been hired to guard Mrs. Houghton's house during her absence and that she, returning ahead of him, forgot the arrangement and thought him an intruder. The fireman and Mrs. Houghton have announced their intention of marrying.

Mayor Bauer's decision found Fitzgibbons guilty on three of the five charges—conduct unbecoming a member of the fire department, wearing a uniform while off duty and failing to report for a roll call. He announced that there was no basis for the charges of immorality.

PROBE FITNESS FOR ADMISSION TO BAR

A majority of the members of the board of examiners having reported adversely on the application of Roy Fernandes Teixeira to be admitted as an attorney-at-law, Judge Crosby of the Supreme Court has appointed George H. Burrage to investigate the assertion of the bar examiners that Teixeira is not of good moral character.

Teixeira was fined in the Federal Court for conspiring to bring liquor into the United States.

HARVARD SICK MAN WATCHES WOMAN DROWN

Ill in bed at the Stillman Infirmary at Harvard University, John Summerhayes, a college freshman, today saw a woman deliberately wade out to her death in the Charles River.

He called nurses who notified the Metropolitan district police, but when they dragged the woman from the water she was dead. She was later identified, according to the police, as Mrs. Katherine Merk, 60, of Lexington avenue, Cambridge.

The body was found floating in the river several hundred feet from the beginning of the tragedy. It was taken to Gerry's Landing pending the arrival of Medical Examiner David C. Dow.

BOY RESCUED AS RAFT SINKS

Fred Mullaney, a member of the Quincy fire department, saved a boy from drowning in Manet Lake, Houghs Neck, today, when he leaped into the water and rescued the lad from a sinking raft.

Alexander Lane, 9, of Babcock street, Houghs Neck, had built a raft of several old railroad ties and was paddling about 50 feet from shore when the logs started sinking. The lineman heard the boy's screams, leaped into the water and pulled him out.

FIND MAN SMASHING HIS BOTTLES AFTER CHASE

A chase between brighton police and a bootlegger's car ended on the Boston & Albany railroad tracks early today when, according to police, they came upon Samuel Mishnick of Cambridge, cautiously smashing bottles of liquor on railroad ties. The police, timed off to the liquor indexed car, had it hid in the brighton abattoir grounds. When Mishnick, who lives in Homer shire street, Cambridge, saw that they ordered him to halt, but he stepped on the gas.

Through back streets and alleys the pursuit led. Twelve bottles of liquor were destroyed by the police as evidence when Mishnick was arraigned. He posted $500 bail.

SHOE WORKERS' OFFICIALS SUED BY DISCHARGED MEN

Haverhill, March 19 (A.P.).—General President John D. Nolan and General Secretary-Treasurer Daniel M. Fitzgerald and Agent James T. George of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union, this city, are named as defendants in a bill of complaint instituting attachment proceedings for $25,000 brought by certain members of Local No. 1, this city. It is charged that certain members of this local being wrongfully removed from their jobs.

ROTA JUDGES CHOSEN IN MARCONI ANNULMENT CASE

Rome, March 19 (A.P.).—Proceedings on nullification of the marriage of William Marconi, wireless inventor, and the Honorable Beatrice Beatrice O'Brien, daughter of the fourteenth Baron Inchiquin, entered the real judicial stage today. Monsignor Massimo Massimi, dean of the Sacred Rota, appointed a court composed of three judges, chosen from among the prelates and auditors of the Rota, to conduct the case.

MOVIE FUTURE IN EDUCATION, SAYS ZUKOR

"The motion picture as a medium of entertainment has reached its peak, but has not come into its own as a medium of education," said Adolph Zukor, pioneer movie magnate, to a Boston Evening American reporter today after addressing 1,000 students of Harvard Business Administration School.

"The future of the motion picture," he continued, "lies in its use in school and college classrooms. I predict it will be extensively used in schools and colleges for visual instruction. Motion pictures will be commonly used like textbooks are now.

"Before that, however, we must have better and more able writers, plus better camera men and better technicians, and we hope to get them out of the colleges. The hope of the future lies in college men interesting themselves in the industry."

In addressing the Harvard Business School students today Mr. Zukor said he was almost as nervous coming over from New York for the ordeal as he was when he returned from Wall Street after getting his first big loan for the development of the motion picture business—the loan being one of $10,000,000.

"The turning point in my career came when I obtained that loan, after several talks with Otto Kahn," said Mr. Zukor. "It was not until that loan was advanced that I realized my responsibilities."

It was at that time his company bought out the Hiatio and Rivoli theatres on Broadway, New York, after Mr. Strand refused to run the company's pictures. He said Mr. Kahn was a man of wide vision, who was able to picture the great future of the motion picture, although nearly all bankers were more interested in the past than in the future, and were "gunshy" of making loans to the industry.

"The management of motion pictures then kicked at paying $1000 a week for pictures, while today we think nothing of getting $15,000 a week.

Mr. Zukor told of the great vision he had of the motion picture's future, even in the days when he operated "nickel arcades" and later when his company was exposed in many States because it insisted on ten cents as the admission price.

Boys of 1927 Are 3 Inches Taller Than Lads of '77

Chicago, March 19 (A.P.)—The average American boy today is three and one-fourth inches taller than he was 50 years ago, Dr. Horace Gray of Chicago says in the current journal of the American Medical Association, the conclusions of an investigation conducted for the Institute of Juvenile Research. He measured several thousand schoolboys and compared the heights with similar figures gathered in the public schools half a century ago. His investigation showed the average six-year-old boy today is about 47 inches tall, as compared with 43.6 inches fifty years ago. The average 18-year-old boy is about 70 inches tall, which is three inches better than the half-century ago average.

Among probable causes for the increased stature, Dr. Gray suggested increased knowledge of vitamins and scientific strides in the control of diseases that retard growth. More comfortable economic conditions, he said, also probably had an important effect.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY

Many New England Folk of Note Are Sailing on the Conte Biancamano for Old World Holiday Jaunts

"OVER THE BOUNDING MAIN" IS A SLOGAN THAT appears to be highly popular with several prominent Bostonians. Quite a company of these social lights are translating their approval into fact, and sail away today for foreign shores on the steamship Conte Biancamano. Philip S. Sears, the artist, and Mrs. Sears, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pelham Curtis are outbound for Mediterranean ports. The T. Morris Murrays—that is to say Dr. Murray and Mrs. Murray, also are aboard the "White Count." They disembark at Genoa with Spain their ultimate destination.

MISS EMILY COOLIDGE, DAUGHTER OF THE HAROLD JEFFERSON COOLIDGES, is sailing. So is Reginald Foster of the Fenway. So are Mr. and Mrs. George H. Davenport. Altogether it's a most representative company of those who breathe the more rarefied atmosphere that is supposed to permeate Boston's aristocratic sections. The Providence upper crust is represented on the Conte Biancamano by the Thomas H. Weeks, Jr., who have a Summer home at Nonquit.

MRS. ALEXANDER THAYER, WIFE OF THE LATE CONSUL AT Genoa, is a passenger bound for Italy on the Biancamano. She has as traveling companion Miss Sarah A. Durning of Washington. Mrs. Thayer moves across the big pond with much regularity, being as perfectly at home on the Continent as on this side. In fact, the greater portion of each year is spent abroad, for she has several homes at this and that smart watering place.

CERTAINLY THE SENIOR SUPPER DANCE SET TAKES TIME by the forelock! Even before the 1926-27 parties are syncopated into history Ronald T. Lyman and his associates have arranged for next Winter's series. They will be at the Copley-Plaza as usual, and the all-important dates are already down in the function book that keeps the record of gay affairs in that popular hostelry. Desirable Friday nights next Winter are already allotted the Seniors, and the Junior Supper Dance Set has also chosen its dates. Next the debutantes of another season will reserve this or that evening, with a premium on the Fridays, of course, for thus is insured the enormous stag line the buds love to have at their dances.

LAST EVENING'S SENIOR DANCE WAS ONE OF THOSE AFFAIRS that wound up in what sailors designate the "Middle Watch." Practically all the regulars were there. Mrs. Ralph Bradley in green tulle, Mrs. Robert Means in gray with long silken fringe, Mrs. Norman Cabot in beige lace and Mrs. Marshall Fabian in violet crepe came early to the dance. On the other hand, Mrs. Francis Sears, wearing black velvet, was an after midnight arrival. She looked very lovely, and her jewels were fit for a Queen. They were square emeralds strung with small pearls. Mrs. Theodore Frothingham wore square emeralds in swinging ear pendants, and her gown was white satin. Mrs. A. Lynde Cochran's robe de style was of black velvet, off the shoulder and bouffant. An enormous cluster of gardenias and ropes of pearls set off the lustrous black perfectly.

THE CROWD THAT HAS BEEN PLAYING TENNIS ALL THE week at Longwood was equal, even after such strenuousness, to putting in several hours tripping to the strains of a marvellous band from New York. Miss Eleonora Sears, Mrs. Samuel Felton, Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, Mrs. Roger Griswold, Miss Isabella Mumford—each was resplendent. Mrs. Harvey Bundy's antique garnet ornaments were among the most striking jewels at the dance. A broad bracelet and a necklace together with eardrops made a stunning adjunct to a period gown of rose taffeta.

MRS. QUINCY SHAW, JR., SET OFF HER PECHE SILK WITH a necklace of beaten gold in enormous loops, and she wore earrings to match. Miss Mary Weld, just in the hectic state of final wedding preparations (she marries Sumner Pingree in Trinity just a week from today), was in gold cloth with pearl tassels. Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper wore an exquisite white frock beautifully beaded in pastels, and her ornaments were diamonds. Those blonde sisters, Miss Louise Forsenden and Mrs. Frederick Buske, wound up the Supper Dances in another of the bewildering "twin" impersonations. Their gowns of peacock crepe sequined in silver were identical, so that to tell one goldenhaired sister from the other was no easy task.

MRS. FRANCIS BACON LOTHROP BROUGHT A BECOMING Florida tan to set off her blue gown. Mrs. Gerald Boardman's taffeta frock was panniered and had a transparent hem. Mrs. John Geary was in white, an embroidered crepe. The skirt was done in points and a ceinture of beads ended in a long tassel. Mrs. Henry St. John Smith in peche lame, Mrs. George von L. Meyer in rose, Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., in orchid taffeta, Mrs. Dick Saltonstall in red, Mrs. Valentine Hollingsworth in black velvet, flaunting a bit of rose beneath its scalloped hem; Mrs. Gardiner Flake in green and Mrs. Dudley Howe in rose silk, each dressed up the picture brightly.

THAT BLONDE YOUNG GIRL WHO HAS A WORLD OF CHIC, Miss Natalie Winslow, always is just a step ahead of the mode. Her rose taffeta was done with a pert sash, and the basque bodice was distinctly a departure from the straight line. The Marchesa Ferranti wore a bright green velvet. It was the same shade of green as the chou of tulle that Mrs. Ronald Lyman perched on one shoulder of her white taffeta frock. Mrs. George Putnam wore an effective striped gold and black, and Mrs. Hinkley Welch was brilliant in black velvet girdled in gold sequins. There were all sorts of going-away plans in the air last evening. Now that the season is over there's a scattering of the smart ones. Mrs. Ronald Lyman has a travel plan that takes her abroad, and the Norman Cabots are off to London, where the season will soon commence. The Oliver Wolcotts, too, are packing their bags for a foreign journey.

WITH MARCH DAYS MARCHING STRAIGHT TOWARD SPRINGtime, sessions of the Skating Club at the Arena are drawing to a close. Soon it will be time to pack away until another season the shining skates on which those devotees of the sport perform so gracefully. Every session brings out the seniors, and as for the juniors, they are out in numbers as though loath to bid farewell to the gleaming ice. Little Miss Phyllis Howe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley R. Howe of Brookline, is one of the younger performers from whom great things are expected.

SOME PRETTY RIGS ON SMALL FEMININE SKATERS LEND color to the scheme of Skating Club sessions. Miss Nancy Wellington skates sometimes wearing a snug beret to top off her knitted frock. Both Alison Kimpton and Dorothy Pierce wear the popular tams, too. The two little daughters of the Frits Talbots, Miss Ruth Talbot and Miss Beatrice Talbot, are ardent and accomplished skaters. If these youngsters progress as they have started, then in a few years there'll be many aspirants for the honors now held by the club's premiere woman skater, Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard.

SPLIT CARS TIE UP SUBWAY

Commuters from Charlestown, Everett and Malden were delayed on their way to work today, when a south-bound subway train parted in the Washington street subway at Milk street.

It was a six-car train that caused the trouble, the train parting between the third and fourth cars. It required ten minutes for the train to be coupled together again and during this delay a score of trains were held up.

At Sullivan square and Everett stations the effects of the tie-up were worst, thousands of passengers at these points crowding the station platforms.

WOMAN LEADS GIRLS INTO NICARAGUAN BATTLE

Managua, Nicaragua, March 19 (I.N.S.).—Colonel Angela Guido, Conservative woman militarist, has departed for the battle-front at the head of a machine-gun squadron, manned by eleven women warriors.

Angela Guido, for services in the war against the Liberals, has been given recognition by the Diaz government and has been raised to the rank of a colonel and permitted to recruit her own command from her own sex.

General Rivera Delgadilla, with 1,500 soldiers, has marched out of Managua to give aid to the Conservative forces, which are reported in contact with the Liberals. As the troops marched, one unusual sight was that of a ten-year-old boy at most staggering beneath the weight of his rifle, as he trudged at the side of his father. The lad chose to be a soldier rather then be separated from his father.

VASSAR AND RADCLIFFE GIRLS DEBATE IN HUB

Vassar girls and Radcliffe students will debate this evening on the Philippine question at the Agassiz Theatre, Cambridge, while another Radcliffe debating team meets the Smith College team at Northampton.

The Radcliffe team in the local contest will uphold the affirmative side of the question, "The Philippines Should Be Granted Independence Within Five Years." This team consists of Dorothy Sibley, Margaret Follin of Brookline and Virginia Carville of Quincy.

BOOM TO BRING BIG TAX CUT

Washington, March 19 (I.N.S.).—If general business conditions continue favorably, December will see the greatest Federal tax cut since the war—at least a half-billion dollars and possibly $60,000,000, it was predicted here today.

Both President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon are agreed that "a sizable cut" is in prospect.

According to all indications, one of the chief beneficiaries of the cut will be that class which is referred to as "the poor rich"—that is, the middle brackets of incomes, ranging from $15,000 to $100,000. The "little fellows" and the "big fellows" were the chief beneficiaries of former cuts.

FIGHT STUDENT SUICIDE REIGN WITH 'UNIES'

Albany, N. Y., March 19 (A.P.)—In an effort to reduce the number of student suicides, Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, Democrat, New York, today announced his intention of proposing an amendment to a pending education bill so as to require wearing of "a distinctive uniform" by all students in public, private and parochial schools and colleges in the State.

Mr. Cuvillier said it was his contention that the uniform would tend to remove class distinctions which he believed to be at the bottom of most of the suicides.

"There is no question," he asserted, "of the existence of pernicious cliques in most of our schools and colleges. One student rides about in his automobile or wears her fur coat while another has difficulty in getting enough money to pay his street car fare or buy material with which she can make a presentable dress.

"It all makes for class distinction, which undoubtedly has its depressing effect on the impressionable minds of our youth."

Uniforms would be designed and prescribed by the Department of Education and, according to Mr. Cuvillier's idea, would be of some "reasonable material and simple design."

WOMEN DEMOCRATS TO HAVE BANQUET APRIL 5

The Women's Democratic Club of Massachusetts will hold its fifth annual banquet and ball at the Elks Hotel on April 5. With Mrs. Gertrude Hayes O'Leary, president and leader of the Democratic women of the State, the central figure.

An enlarged committee of 75 women have charge of the arrangements with the following chairmen at the head: Mrs. Charles H. Cole, Miss Elizabeth Needham, tickets; Mrs. Margaret Kenney, books; Mrs. William Bryant, badges; Mrs. Mary Gallagher, ushers; and Mrs. Katherine R. Clarke, publicity.

SPELMAN LEAVES FOR RETAIL CONVENTION

Secretary Joseph A. Spelman of the New England Retail Clothiers and Furnishers Association has gone to St. Louis to attend the fourteenth annual convention of the National Association Retail Clothiers and Furnishers. Mr. Spelman will also visit at the National Association offices in Chicago on his return. Among the local delegates are, George Goldie and A. W. Libbie of William Filene's Sons Co.

Saved By Two Fingers After Falling 3 Out of 13 Stories

New York, March 19 (A.P.).—An iron worker, James Connolly, lost his balance "on the iron" thirteen stories above ground today and plunged toward the earth through the framework of a building under construction.

He was saved by two fingers.

Three stories below the bare crossplece from which he fell, his arm struck a small platform used for storage purposes. A frantic clutch checked his plunge, but the momentum loosened his grip, except for two fingers.

With a struggle he swung himself to the platform amid the cheers of workers above, who sent him to a hospital for treatment of nothing more than two badly sprained digits.

49 ARE KILLED IN SOUTHERN TORNADOES

nado near Marshfield, in Webster County, Missouri. Hail and high winds also damaged buildings and crops in Howell and Oregon Counties.

At Benton, Ark., ten were reported dead.

The storm apparently centred at Green Forest, where upwards of 700 houses and stores were destroyed or badly damaged. Streets were filled with debris, which hindered rescue crews.

VICTIMS PINNED IN RUINS.

As the storm severed power lines as well as telephone and telegraph wires, the rescuers stumbled about with lanterns, tracing the cries of injured or marking spots where people were believed pinned or buried by stone and timbers.

Persons arriving at Eureka Springs, Ark., 25 miles northwest of Green Forest, said the Missouri and North Arkansas Railroad station, an elementary schoolhouse and a bank building were among structures virtually demolished.

Elmson Mountain country farmers said the storm broke near Berryville about 7:45 p. m. and swept southeast to Green Forest to level the south end of the city.

Ten Killed as Storm Sweeps Arkansas Town

Little Rock, Ark., March 19 (A.P.).—A citizens' committee was in charge of relief work for the homeless at Benton today as a result of the tornado which swept the section Thursday night, killing ten persons and seriously injuring twelve.

Thirty persons gathered to see a school play at Point View were saved from probable death when the storm struck there and demolished the school building. A beam was caught in such a position that the weight of the debris was suspended two feet above the ground.

Colorado and Wyoming Are Gripped by Big Blizzard

Denver, Colo., March 19 (A.P.).—Colorado and Wyoming lay under one of the heaviest snow blankets of the Winter today following a storm last night that approached blizzard proportions at many points.

Traffic in many mountain towns was virtually at a standstill today, while highways were blocked with deep drifts.

FREIGHT WRECK TIES UP B. & A. NEAR PITTSFIELD

Pittsfield, March 19.—A tie-up of traffic, both eastbound and westbound, for three hours was caused early today when fifteen cars of an eastbound Boston & Albany freight train were derailed two miles west of here. The derailment was due to a broken truck on one of the cars. No one was injured.

THE GUIDE TO Turn to next Beacon

Easy Picking for Jamoe.

Jim Maloney, Boston's own favorite contender for the heavyweight crown, is still waiting for the championship before collecting a few meagre pansies. He is announced as the feature of the Orpheum bill, starting March 28th, and the salary is only $5000.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Perhaps They Deserve It.

Each night at the Plymouth the audience is asked not to be disturbed when the guns and back-stage effects of "What Price Glory" begin booming at the adjoining Majestic. "No need to be alarmed," says the announcer, "they're only killing some movie actors."

RETURN OF OLD FRIENDS BRINGS GREAT EXPECTATIONS FOR THE NEW WEEK'S DRAMA

AT HIS POST every night is Edward Nell, chief tenor admirer of Carolyn Thomson in the musical romance of "The Vagabond King," opening Monday at the Shubert.

JARVIS KERR, who a year ago was more concerned with "exams" and such at Vassar College, now supports Mrs. Fiske in Ibsen's "Ghosts," opening Monday at the Park.

ARLYNE WHITE, one of many fair and favored daughters of the chorus line, is one reason why the banner of "Queen High" is kept permanently waving among Boston bright lights. The show now moves upon the Plymouth for an indefinite conquest of Stuart street.

FLORENCE MOORE, revue and musical comedy artiste, comes to Keith's for a week with some very particular songs. Lieutenant Gitz Rice at the piano.

AN AFFAIR OF THE HEART in "Trelawney of the Wells," opening Monday at the Tremont. Helen Gahagan reads John Drew a love letter from a particular friend.

IMPOSING REVIVALS HOLD LOCAL STAGE

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

AN indulgent retrospection of a rapidly receding season makes it clear to any eye that all has not been well with the spoken drama. Locally, at least, it has been a musical year. With very few exceptions the fuss and feathers of musical comedy have taken the field and held it, leaving somewhat meagre pickings for the more daring comedies and farces. And yet there is a gleam of hope for the ardent play fan who prefers something more satisfying than dancing ensembles and shrill choruses. If latter day authors cannot write the stuff needed to put the spoken drama back where it belongs, it is quite certain that the playsmiths of yesterday may be relied upon to form a reserve line of imposing power.

THIS was discovered when Mr. Brady reached into a dim past and fetched forth Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows." With the charms of Helen Hayes and the whimsicalities of Barrie in artistic wedlock Boston had its first joyous entertainment without the accompaniment of wiggling legs and fancy strutting. The engagement at the Plymouth was the noteworthy event of the early season; it gave significant evidence that the spoken drama could be made to prosper. Still, the musical plays have held complete dominion over the local area and the departure of "What Every Woman Knows" was indicated by further sagging in things purely dramatic.

BUT new resurrections are now in order. Again a long arm stretched into the generation behind and George C. Tyler bobbed up blithely with Pinero's "Trelawney of the 'Wells'" dangling from his fingers. If nothing else, Mr. Tyler is an earnest, faithful restorer of discarded but not forgotten plays. Brave gestures with "The Rivals" and "The School for Scandal" did not dim his ardor in the delights of revivification and "Trelawney" comes to the Tremont on Monday as another glowing example of the Tyler devotion to duty. A staggering cast will interpret the play and there is fine promise that the spoken drama will be restored to Tremont street for one week, at least.

NOT to be outdone by any casual rival in the sport of digging into the past for serviceable material, Harrison Grey Fiske has brought Henrik Ibsen's "Ghosts" back to the theatre, with Mrs. Fiske doing the tragic Mrs. Alving. We are assured that in the performances at the Park Mrs. Fiske will be seen in a new interpretation of the part—an interpretation she believes to be what Ibsen himself intended when the play was written. It was twenty years ago that Ibsen, writing to Mrs. Fiske, expressed the hope that she would some day play Mrs. Alving in America and "make her clear to the people." This one line in Ibsen's letter inspired Mrs. Fiske to test her talents in the so-called "new interpretation."

Good Bye 'Sunny'

MARILYN MILLER as "Sunny" at the Colonial is preparing to move out with the show on next Saturday night.

NEXT WEEK'S NEW BILLS

TREMONT—"Trelawney of the 'Wells,'" a play by Sir Arthur Wing Pinero. An all star cast in a revival of Pinero's drama of the London stage in the early sixties. Among the players are John Drew, Peggy Wood, O. P. Heggie, Helen Gahagen, Otto Kruger, Estelle Winwood, Rollo Peters, Mrs. Thomas Whiffen, Wilton Lackaye, Henrietta Crosman, John E. Kelerd, Effie Shannon, Lawrance d'Orsay, J. M. Kerrigan, Eric Dressler and Frieda Inescort. Staged by William Seymour. Produced by George C. Tyler.

* * *

PARK—Mrs. Fiske in "Ghosts," a drama by Henrik Ibsen. First appearance here of Mrs. Fiske in the tragic role of Mrs. Alving. The current version is a revision of the original English translation by William Archer. In the supporting cast are Walter Ringham, Theodore St. John, Jarvis Kerr and W. C. Masson. Produced and staged by Harrison Grey Fiske.

SHUBERT—"The Vagabond King," a musical play based on Justis Huntly McCarthy's "If I Were King." Book and lyrics by W. H. Post and Brian Hooker; music by Rudolf Friml. In the cast are Carolyn Thomson, Edward Nell, Jr., Max Figman, Will H. Philbrick, Jane Carroll, H. H. McCollum, Katherine Hayes, Lucy Lawler, Brian Lycan, John Thorn, Herbert Delmore and Helen Grenelle. Staged by Max Figman and Richard Boleslavsky; dance numbers staged by Helen Grenelle and Royal Cutter. Produced by Russell Janney.

ST. JAMES—(Stock) "Up in Mabel's Room," a farce by Otto Harbach and Collison Wilson. A merry play of the well-known bed room variety made popular a few seasons ago by Al Woods. In the cast are Florence Shirley, Walter Gilbert, Charles I. Schofield, Frank Charlton, Edith Spears and Kathleen Wallace. Staged by Mr. Schofield.

BEETHOVEN LECTURE

In connection with the Beethoven centenary, a lecture on Beethoven will be given by Thomas W. Surette on Wednesday afternoon in the Lecture Hall of the Boston Public Library. The lecture will be open to the public.

ATWATER CONCERT

Anita Atwater, soprano, will be heard in recital at Jordan Hall next Saturday afternoon. Her program includes many masterpieces of song, chosen from Italian, French, German, English and American composers.

Romantic Lady

MARCELINE DAY is an admirably pictorial heroine for John Barrymore in "The Beloved Rogue" at Loew's Orpheum next week.

'QUEEN HIGH'S' NEXT STOP PLYMOUTH

"Queen High" is sky-high in the favor of Boston theatregoers.

Apparently there is no limit to the local run of the "ace of musical comedies." But the only fly in the ointment that soothes the spirit of Laurence Schwab, the producer, as he strives to keep track of the number of weeks he has played here, is the threatened shortage of theatres.

After exhausting the Wilbur and the Shubert, Mr. Schwab has secured the Plymouth, to which the show moves Monday. But there's no telling how long he will remain there.

Nevertheless, when the Plymouth stage becomes too deeply dented from Nina Olivette's sharply staccato dancing heels, as well as from the concerted stampings of a restless chorus, "Queen High" may make another "positively last appearance"—and land at the Majestic or any other available house.

Until that time, Jack Hazard, Julia Sanderson, Frank Crumit and all the rest will go right ahead with their arrangement for Summer cottages at nearby beaches. From then on they will think about next Winter and all the succeeding Winters when their heirs and assigns will be playing "Queen High" up and down Tremont street as a permanent Boston institution, as much of a tradition as the swan-boats in the Public Garden or the Saturday night bean supper. And why not?

BURGIN GETS OVATION AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

Music-lovers who have attended the Symphony Concerts and have noticed with regularity the conscientious work of Richard Burgin, for the last seven seasons concert master of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, were not slow to show their appreciation when he appeared yesterday as soloist in Glazounow's concerto for violin and orchestra.

Burgin was greeted with hearty applause by audience and men of the orchestra when he came on the stage. And at the close of the concerto, which is in four movements played without pause, he was given one of the greatest ovations of the season.

It was an ovation well deserved, on the merits of his solo-playing yesterday afternoon. In a piece that is of great technical difficulty for the violinist he displayed above all a remarkable accuracy of intonation, beautiful tone, and admirable musicianship. Never the conventional virtuoso, he was content to subordinate his efforts to producing a performance notable for its finished ensemble. The concerto, which was last played here sixteen years ago, was good to hear.

Of quite a different character was a new symphony in A minor by Tansman, the Polish composer, whose music Mr. Koussevitzky has previously introduced to symphony audiences. This new work, dedicated to Mr. Koussevitzky and given its first performance anywhere yesterday, was chiefly notable for its insistence on dance rhythms, an elementary characteristic of the symphonic form which composers have tended to ignore beginning with the romantic movement in music.

The music itself, although well made and exhibiting a certain individuality, did not impress the writer as much as the copious explanations of the composer in the program book would seem to warrant. Perhaps Tansman suffered by following the beautiful "Water Music" of Handel, of which seven movements opened yesterday's concert.

LEARNS HIS LESSON WELL

An amazing "slant" on the American doughboy in France during the junketing season in the late but untamented war is offered in one short sequence of "What Price Glory," the Laurence Stallings war film now at the Majestic.

Behind the lines waiting for his turn with "Gerry," your American soldier boy must be amused. In the film there is the long-bearded and pudgy mayor of the town in which Captain Flagg and his Leathernecks spend many carefree hours.

The dotted cubes, or "galloping ivories," are nimble American playtoys that fascinate His Honor completely. The bewildering inconstancy of "none seven," has him in the toils. The boys are lenient, it is supposed, and let him win enough to sustain his interest. But with the first bugle call to "fall in" for a march to the front, His Honor learns a great moral lesson.

With the suddenness of bad news the bugle's sharp notes penetrate a group of crouched figures and the gathering melts like ice in the Summer, leaving a panic-stricken Mayor the picture of dismay to mourn alone the loss of his precious francs.

Wheeler, Pulitzer Prize Winner, in Copley Ranks

Members of the E. E. Clive company at the Copley Theatre have many accomplishments, but outstanding in this respect is Roger Wheeler, a native of Newtonville.

He is a Pulitzer prize play winner and has written others that have been successful presentations.

He was educated at the Brown and Nichols school in Cambridge and upon graduation studied at Columbia in Hatcher Hughes' playwrighting courses. He wrote, upon graduation, "Hell Bent Fer Heaven," which proved to be the Pulitzer prize play, and "Wake Up, Jonathan" in which Mrs. Fiske starred in New York.

BED TIME STORIES FOR THE WISE BOYS

ROY ATWELL, as the "radio poet" in "Americana" at the Wilbur, tells many a "smart one" on the great indoor pastime for those who know their static. He just dotes on loud speakers.

WOULD TABOO ALL MAKE-UP

The time will come, and within the present generation, when there will be no make-up used on the stage.

This is the positive opinion of Clifton Webb, the exceedingly talented dancer and comedian in "Sunny," at the Colonial.

"Soon the quality of stage lighting will be changed generally," said Mr. Webb, "and will be better able to show the fleeting facial expression that a good actor should have. Then there will be no knack of make-up lines on the face of the carelessly prepared player, so often completely destroys all illusion of the stage. And then, too, it is possible the actor may try even harder to make the audience see in his face just what the author presupposes is passing through the mind of the character.

"There is nothing new in this," continued Mr. Webb; "the idea is far from original with me—but it is nearer than most people suppose. I have become thoroughly impressed with the idea through a brief engagement I once had in Margaret Anglin's company, during which I became intensely interested in her advance studies in stage lighting. It may not be generally known, but Miss Anglin, more than any of the great artists of the present day stage, believes that nothing is more important in the mechanics of the drama than perfectly attuned lighting."

Boston Girl In Stage Bill at the Metropolitan

Mabel Clemence, a Boston girl, makes her first public appearance behind the footlights in her home town at the Metropolitan in John Murray Anderson's "Stone Age Follies."

Miss Clemence recently returned from a seven-months' tour in South America. She is a niece of John T. Barnicoat, one of the officials of the New England Telephone Company, and formerly lived at 726 Watertown street, Newtonville. Miss Clemence made her first appearance in an amateur performance in Boston, following which she went to New York and enrolled in Ned Wayburn's School of Dancing.

Denishawn Dancers Are Coming to Opera House

Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn and their company of dancers return to Boston for their only appearances of the season at the Boston Opera House on Friday evening, April 1, and Saturday afternoon and evening, April 2. Japanese, Chinese, Hindu and Burmese dances and dance-plays make up a large share of the program.

SWEET ROMANCE GONE ON THE ROCKS

SEA OF TROUBLE wells up for Billie Dove and Raymond Bloomer in "Sensation Seekers," film of jazz-mad youth having its fling at the good old conventions, at the Boston all next week.

POINTED REMARKS IN 'WHAT PRICE GLORY'

FIERY CHARMAINE speaks sizzling syllables hot off the temper to Cognac Pete in the Laurence Stallings war film at the Majestic. Dolores Del Rio and William V. Mong in "characters."

The Penalty of Beauty.

Joe Brennan, after managing Loew's State successfully for five years, finally had his picture on the screen in the anniversary week program. Now he is paying the penalty in the shape of interesting proposals from hundreds of unknown admirers.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Boys, Be Very Careful.

The girls of "The Cocounuts," according to their advance courier, William Tecumseh Gorman, have organized a "Slow 'Em Down Club" as the first step in a concerted campaign against ardent freshmen and sophomores. They are planning stern action.

FOLK FROM THE LAND OF LIGHT AND SHADE IN REFLECTION ON LOCAL SCREENS

IT'S THE BEARD that frightens Virginia Valli away from Adolphe Menjou in "Evening Clothes" at the Metropolitan. And no wonder! For where is the lady who wants her husband to look like a coughdrop manufacturer?

PROVING that two can live as cheaply as one, or something like that in "The Fire Brigade" (Loew's State). May McAvoy and Holmes Herbert demonstrating.

JUST A POOR WIDDER! but being also of blonde attainments, Phyllis Haver manages to awaken Charles Ray's interest sufficiently to distract him from a wife who is determined to be "Nobody's Widow." (Modern and Beacon).

GR-R-R-E-E-EE! Alice White plays this sic-'em-Tige scene with Milton Sills in "The Sea Tiger" at the Olympia. It's a very biting drama indeed.

PINCHED! Madge Bellamy plays "Bertha The Sewing Machine Girl" at the Fenway in modern dress. That's why they utilize a telephone switchboard, Walter Bailey as a "fresh" admirer, and many other up-to-the-minute improvements.

MENJOU OUT FOR FRESH TALENT

Get fluttered, girls, or at least fluttery!

Adolphe Menjou is on the hunt for leading women and he leans toward unknowns.

The debonair star is haunting the music halls, the variety theatres, and even the cabarets with his eye on feminine pulchritude that will fit the leading feminine roles of the pictures that he is going to make in the future.

The nonchalant Menjou is no mean picker, as any one who saw Suzanne Fleming, for instance, as Alice Joyce's daughter in "The Ace of Cads," will testify.

Menjou saw Susan in the front row of the Follies during his New York visit while he was on a scouting expedition with Luther Reed, his director, for some decorative talents for the Michael Arlen story. Suzanne was invited to a screen test with the result that she became a full-fledged film personality over night. The same thing is likely to happen again, so look your prettiest girls! You may never know when the keen eyed Menjou may be appraising you with the view of boosting you to fame and fortune!

While Virginia Valli, who plays opposite Menjou in his latest picture, "Evening Clothes," at the Metropolitan, is not precisely a newcomer to pictures, she is nevertheless testimonial to Menjou's unerring eye for beauty.

CHANGES IN VAUDEVILLE

B. F. KEITH'S — Florence Moore, star of musical comedy and revue, in songs by Neville Fleeson with Gitz Rice at the piano; Deno and Rochelle, exponents of the Apache, in a dance act with the Concert Quartet and Pepino and Dilworth; Alan Mowbray, local stock favorite, in his own playlet called "The Try-Angle"; Clayton Bennie in the skit, "A Sundae in London"; George and Jack Dermondie, pantomimists, in a novelty act called "Scientific Nonsense"; Maude Wallace and Marty May in the fantasy, "Just Slippers," and others.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM — Marshal Montgomery, ventriloquist, assisted by Lucille De Haven; Cabot and Tortoni in the comedy act called "The Boy from Belgium and the Girl From France"; Bob Gilbert and Arvil Avery with Lillian Kenny and company in a musical comedy in miniature; Jock MacKay, "The Scotch Ambassador of Mirth"; Craddock and Shadney with "Maximo" in a slack wire specialty, and others. The feature picture will be "The Beloved Rogue," adapted from the life of Francois Villon, with John Barrymore and Marceline Day.

FILM FARE FOR NEW WEEK

METROPOLITAN (Starting today) Adolphe Menjou in "Evening Clothes" (first run), adapted from the play, "The Man in the Dress Clothes," by Andre Picard and Yves Mirande. NORSE DRAMA WRITTEN AT ITALIAN INN

Students of Ibsen and admirers of Mrs. Fiske, who see her superb performance in "Ghosts," opening a fortnight's engagement at the New Park on Monday evening, may recall that this powerful human story of the grim North was not written in Ibsen's native Scandinavian, but amid the warmth and romance of Italy. Some years before the World War, Walter Kingsley, an actor in Mrs. Fiske's company, spent several weeks in Amalfi, Italy, at the Albergo Della Luna ("The Inn of the Moon"), in the same rooms which had been occupied by Ibsen in 1879 while he was writing "A Doll's House."

Mrs. Fiske

Two years later, in 1881, Ibsen wrote his supreme human drama, "Ghosts," in the little town of Sorrento, on the other side from Amalfi on the same picturesque peninsula in Southern Italy. It seems extraordinary that these two plays, which dealt so meticulously with life in Ibsen's northern, natal land, should have been written in a region of the world so utterly different.

One would ask for no better evidence of the innate concentration of Ibsen's imaginative mind. Each day he shut his mind against the gorgeous vistas of the Bay of Naples, in order to see more intensely, with the eyes of memory, the haunting mists of a faraway Norwegian fjord. In those days he gave to the world a work that will live forever.

Fifteen-Year-Old Prodigy of Piano to Give Recital

Bernardo Siegel, a Brazilian pianist of only fifteen years, will give a concert at Steinert Hall tomorrow afternoon. Young Siegel came to America a year and a half ago, played before Alexander Silcti, the Russian master, who was much impressed with the youth's talents, and who took him under his supervision. Siegel's Boston program will include Bach's Italian concerto, Beethoven's sonata, op. 10, and miscellaneous numbers.

Emma Trentini to Appear Next Week at the State

Returning to America after European triumphs, Emma Trentini, who will be remembered for her excellent performance in "Naughty Marietta and Firefly," will be seen at Loew's State next week. Trentini is one of the few grand opera stars who have been successful in light opera and the lighter forms of musical entertainment. She has one of the world's finest voices and can use it either as an instrument for grand opera or for the entertainment of those who like the melodies of Victor Herbert or Rudolf Friml.

Emma Trentini

Window-Dresser Makes Good on the Stage

From window dressing to playing comedy roles on the stage is a considerable step, but Arthur Stone, featured in "Sea Tigers" at the Olympia, took it at one stride—and from that to motion pictures was a logical transition.

Stone was born in St. Louis but his family moved to Chicago while he was still an infant. There he spent his boyhood and finally entered the window dressing department of Marshall-Field's. He "talked back" to the boss one day and so received his walking papers. Next he became an usher—that being the open season in the stage world by which so many actors have gained access to the world of make believe.

RUYSDAEL IN "COCOANUTS"

No player in musical comedy is better equipped for his work than Basil Ruysdael, the detective in "The Cocounuts," musical comedy with the Marx Brothers as stars, which comes to the Colonial for a two weeks' engagement Monday, March 28. He has the distinction of having been a leading basso for several years with the Metropolitan Opera Company, and sang with them in the last visit of the "Met" to Boston.

Basil Ruysdael

However, the enticements of musical comedy, with its constant and more lengthy terms of employment, drew Mr. Ruysdael. He was not hampered by foreign birth and accent, for he was born in New York and had been a student at Cornell University to study electrical engineering. The college glee club won him for a member and the stage virus entered his blood. He left college and obtained a part with Raymond Hitchcock in "The Yankee Consul."

Since he had his mind set upon the stage as a career, his parents sent him to Germany to perfect his voice. Two years with a noted voice teacher, a year with the grand opera company in Bohemia, another year of study in Paris and he was engaged by Andreas Dippel for the Metropolitan Opera Company, with which he stayed for eight years.

John Barrymore Follows Great Dramatic Lineage

John Barrymore, who appears as Francois Villon in "The Beloved Rogue," the film feature at Loew's Orpheum for the new week, descends from an old American stage family. His father was Maurice Barrymore, well known actor, and his mother was a sister of the great John Drew. His brother, Lionel, is one of the most prominent actors on the American stage, and the fame of his sister, Ethel, is international. John Barrymore, strangely enough, did not follow immediately in the footsteps of his father. He began his career as a newspaper man, but on reaching the age of 21, went on the stage.

Sousa in New Venture.

For the first time in the history of his celebrated band, Lt.-Com. John Philip Sousa and his spirited group of players will be heard in a motion picture theatre. The engagement will be at the Metropolitan for an entire week, starting Saturday, April 9th.

Fred E. Wright, dean of the local theatre managers up to the time the Selwyn was demolished to make room for the Statler, is proving himself too tough for surgeons. Operated upon two weeks ago, he is now almost restored to fighting weight.

JUBILEE FOR GREATEST CONTRALTO

Fifty years ago Ernestine Schumann-Heink made her first public appearance in Austria as a little girl of fifteen. This half-century of great music - making has included innumerable concerts in Boston, and her public here is expected to give her a warm welcome when she makes her last New England appearance of her Golden Jubilee Tour in Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon.

Schumann-Heink

The contralto, who has a firm hold upon the affections of American concert audiences, comes here directly from New York, where she sang an all-Warner program, with the combined New York Philharmonic and Symphony Society Orchestras at the Metropolitan Opera House. She will soon travel westward and end her tour in the latter part of May.

Beethoven Festival at Symphony Next Week

One of the most remarkable testimonials to the genius of Beethoven on the occasion of his centenary will be the Beethoven Festival at Symphony Hall beginning on Tuesday evening and continuing through the following Tuesday evening.

Under the direction of Serge Koussevitzky, the Symphony Orchestra, assisted by the Harvard Glee Club and Radcliffe Choral Society and eminent soloists, will perform Beethoven's Mass in D for the first time in Boston since the dedication of Symphony Hall in 1900. The Mass opens the Festival on Tuesday evening.

A repetition of the Mass for the benefit of the pension fund of the orchestra will be given next Sunday afternoon.

Good Friends In Spite of Marital Estrangement

A few years brings a great change in the order of things. So, "Sensation Seekers," now showing at the Keith-Albee, Boston, brings a change in the lives of two people. Years ago Phillips Smalley was director general of the Universal studio. He hired a woman to direct. She was Lois Weber and they fell in love and were married. They have undergone several changes since then. They were divorced and both have married again but when Miss Weber came back to Universal she immediately remembered her former mate, who was now a leading character actor, and signed him for an important role in her directorial vehicle, "Sensation Seekers," in which he supports Billie Dove and Huntley Gordon, stars of the picture.

Helen Gahagan Writes as Well as Enacts Plays

Although she plays the title role in the star-spangled production of "Trelawny of the 'Wells,'" opening Monday at the Tremont, Helen Gahagan finds her chief ambition still unsatisfied. The distinguished company of John Drew, Peggy Wood, Estelle Winwood, Wilton Lackaye, Q. P. Heggie and her fellow-players in the Pinero comedy isn't enough. Miss Gahagan is determined to become a playwright—or rather, to continue to be a playwright.

Helen Gahagan

Miss Gahagan has not only written a play, but has also had the satisfaction of having it produced. "Shadows of the Moon," a play of old Ireland, brought considerable credit to the young Irish girl when it was staged two years ago at the Lenox Hill Theatre, one of New York's smallest "art" playhouses.

McCARTHY RECITAL

Angela McCarthy, contralto, will give a song recital in Jordan Hall on Thursday evening. Numbers in French, Italian and English make up an unhackneyed program.

MOWBRAY TO PLAY KEITH'S

Alan Mowbray, who has become a great deal of a local favorite by virtue of his long association with the Copley Players, will make his first appearance in vaudeville Monday at B. F. Keith's in a playlet of his own composition. Besides being an actor of much experience and skill, Mr. Mowbray has also devoted himself to writing. During his precious few off hours in the week - to - week grind of acting in a resident company, he has often amused himself with the concoction of plays and playlets; and is now disposed to find out if the public will have as much fun witnessing one of them as he had writing it.

Alan Mowbray

Mowbray's vehicle to be presented at Keith's is a bit of comedy he has styled, "The Try-Angle." Though having run the gamut of all kinds of roles during his career as an actor, his most well-liked appearances have been in characterizations "with a smile." His flair for light comedy has been shown in many of the smart trifles of the English authors such as Milne's "The Dover Road," and in broader roles like "The Bad Man."

MOVIE PICTURE COMPETITION OPENS MONDAY

petition, see Monday's paper, and study Test Problem No. 1.

The plan is to print each day the photograph of a scene from some well known motion picture play.

The face or ONE of the players will have been painted out.

Participants in the competition will be required to NAME THE PLAY AND THE NAME THE PLAYER WHOSE FACE IS MISSING.

HOLD PICTURES UNTIL END.

They will be announced in the List of Titles and a list of players which will be printed daily thereafter but the pictures will be held until many others, may be found are title of the play and the name of the player.

The letter requirement is simplicity itself. All the means is that you are to write not more than 200 words on "My Favorite Movie Player." Give the name of the play and tell WHY it is YOUR favorite.

There are ALL the requirements. Hold the pictures until No. 24 has appeared, then send them all in at once—limited of course, to agree with your letter.

The terms of this competition has been made brief because Spring is almost at the door and vacation time is in bud. The first prize will be given to the winner of the First Award to be given on his or her way to New York, to sail for the Tropics on one of the Great White Fleet ships of the United Fruit Company.

The prizes are some of the best that could be obtained for a short, friendly competition of this character.

Travelers were quick to learn that the Tropics can be enjoyed in the Spring and Summer months quite as well as in the months of January, February and March. For the Tropics is a region of perpetual, delightful Summer. Careful readings of the thermometer in Kingston, Jamaica, for example, indicate a mean temperature of 80 degrees the year around and even this is tempered by a cooling, westerly trade wind, which, because of its beneficient influence, is called by the natives, "the Doctor."

What is more delightful than to contemplate a leisurely voyage over seas bluer than turquoise to lands where stately palms line the shores and where lacey surf runs over coral reefs in colors much more rich and glow. Here everything is colorful and opulent. Houses are painted pink, blue, green, yellow to match the dress of the people is a kaleidoscopic jumble of brilliant color.

Magnificent flowering trees, resembling gigantic purple and white bouquets, dot the hillsides. Hibiscus and Cape Jasmine hedges, hedgerows; feathery bamboos, giant ferns, are everywhere and at night time the fireflies, common in the South, are in the North, gleam like golden lamps in a violet dusk. Nature's realm is more interestingly colorful, more mystical and more beautiful than the lands and islands of the Caribbean Sea.

Want to go?

Ships sail about the middle of May.

First stop, Santiago, Cuba; second, Kingston, Jamaica; third, Puerto Castilla, Honduras; fourth, next, Puerto Barrios, Guatemala, with a visit to Guatemala City; next, Belize, British Honduras.

BEACH TRIP OFFERED.

And then to skim our fine New England roads in the Grand Type Ford sedan which goes as the second award in this contest.

The Browning-Drake radio, described a day or two ago in these columns is the achievement of the Greater Boston instructors, one of them connected with Harvard University and the other with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. There is nothing better on the market at anywhere near the price. This one was built at the factory, No. 352 Washington street, Brighton.

The Gray Line, under whose direction the winner of the third award will visit the Maine beaches and the White Mountains, is the oldest as well as one of the most reliable sight-seeing companies in Boston. This will be the Gray Line's twenty-first season.

Everyone in Greater Boston knows the beautiful Metropolitan and Loew's State and Loew's Orpheum Theatres (excellent music, superior vaudeville, the best in motion pictures are among the characteristics of each).

There are some to whom a Caribbean tour will appeal the most strongly: there are others who would like the auto; there are homes where the arrival of a Browning-Drake radio set would properly be the cause of a family celebration and without doubt there still are many New Englanders eager for a visit to the Poland Springs House, Crawford Notch and Franconia Notch and see for the first time the Old Man of the Mountain.

Wonderful prizes all, especially when it is remembered that the tours are for TWO persons and the Browning-Drake radio for the entire household.

Just the same, there are movie fans without number in Greater Boston who can imagine nothing better than to be possessor of a ticket to the Metropolitan Theatre, to Loew's State or Loew's Orpheum Theatre. GOOD FOR AN ENTIRE SEASON.

The competition begins on Monday, in the Boston Evening American.

Souths is the dealer. What is the proper bidding and play?

Each day we shall publish a complete hand presented by Mr. Whitehead, together with a chart upon which the bidding and play may be noted.

Tomorrow we shall publish Mr. Whitehead's explanation of today's hand.

Fill out your own chart and compare it tomorrow with Mr. Whitehead's method.

These hands must not be bid or played "Double Dummy." I. e., as though all four hands were exposed.

Yesterday's Hand as Played by Mr. Whitehead

SALIENT POINTS OF BIDDING

Jack holds more than the required value for an original Fourth Hand bid, correctly bids his Major suit instead of a No Trump. An added reason against an initial No Trump bid was the worthless doubleton. South correctly overcalled with two Diamonds, holding slightly more than the required strength for a defensive bid over an adverse suit bid. West's assist of East's Fourth Hand Spade bid was sound in every respect.

SALIENT POINTS OF PLAY

Trick 1. South is now stripped of Spades and Hearts, and from his initial lead of the King of Diamonds must hold the Queen. Therefore East is now assured of a Small Slam by throwing South in the lead with a Diamond. Should South lead another Diamond, East can trump in dummy, and discard the Queen of Clubs. Should he lead a Club, East's Ace and Queen must win.

Mr. Whitehead will solve whist problems for American readers. Use self-addressed, stamped envelope in writing him.

TO BOOM N. E. RECREATION

Co-ordination in development of New England recreational resources will be the principal purpose of a conference in Hotel Statler March 29, under the auspices of the committee on recreational resources of the New England Council. It will be the first time all these interests have come together on a New England basis.

Hiram W. Ricker of Poland Spring, Me., chairman of the council committee, will make the opening address. Those attending will include representatives of New England railroads, hotel associations, automobile clubs, advertising clubs, chambers of commerce and State and regional publicity bureaus.

There will be morning and afternoon sessions and a dinner in the evening. The dinner topic will be motion picture publicity, and films showing New England's recreational attractions in movie form will be exhibited.

In addition to Mr. Ricker, the members of the committee are: Colonel William A. Barron, Crawford Notch, N. H.; J. E. Babbit, Bellows Falls, Vt.; P. F. O'Keefe, Boston; Carl B. Lunn, Jr., Newport, and H. C. Knight, New Haven.

NEW PRINCETON HAT STORE OPENS IN HUB

Evidence of Boston's importance as a business centre, a new Princeton Hat Store, a link in a system that extends to all the big cities of this country, opened this morning at 288 Washington street, opposite School street.

Princeton stores emphasize style in men's hats and maintain a fashion service that is unique in enabling customers to select the right hat.

Holzman Brothers of Rochester, N. Y., are the parent organization of the chain. They make the Princeton hat, retailing at $3.50 and Society Club hats at $5.

Harry Holzman, Boston superintending the opening, says: "Hats are running to light, delicate colors with brims narrow and dome or rim finding favor. The crown tapers more than last Spring and is more becoming to the average man."

Richard J. Henrion, well known in the local retail hat trade, is manager of the new store.

MRS. NICHOLS TO WEAR ANCESTOR'S BALL GOWN

Turning back the pages of history and into the modes and fashions of the early eighties, Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, first lady of the city, will be the central figure in the gown her great-great-grandmother wore at a Presidential reception when she appears, for charity sake, Wednesday afternoon and evening, on March 30, at the Home Beautiful Exposition in Mechanics Building.

Under the auspices of a large group of socially prominent women of Boston, the costumes will be part of the exhibition of the Christopher Shop Organization, a charity devoted to the provision of employment for crippled men and women, to be worn in a pageant to given by them.

HEIRESS LIKES HOSPITAL

Elsie M. P. Morrill, Belmont heiress, arrested recently in Springfield for carrying a gun and at present undergoing mental tests at the Boston Psychopathic Hospital, is pleased with her new environment, according to a statement today by Dr. Harry Schneider, executive officer.

"One can hardly expect a patient in any hospital to be in an enjoyable mood," Dr. Schneider said, "but Miss Morrill is in a co-operative mood and is conforming to the rules and regulations of the hospital. She spends most of her time reading. She will be given the privilege of using the occupational room Monday, but no diagnosis or tests will be completed for at least five or six days."

TELEGRAPHERS, AGENTS ON B. & M. GET RAISE

A voluntary agreement between the Boston & Maine Railroad and its telegraphers, station agents and towermen, under which a wage increase, averaging slightly less than 4 per cent, and aggregating $75,000, will become effective immediately, was announced today. Telegraphers agreed, it was said, to accept changes in working rules proposed by the road. Approximately 1,000 employes are affected.

L. M. Eddy, vice-president of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, and D. S. Brigham, assistant general manager of the Boston & Maine, represented employes and the road in the negotiations.

COMERFORD'S PLEA FOR NEW TRIAL IS DENIED

Motion for a new trial for John D. Comerford, now serving five to seven years in state prison for assault with criminal intent, was denied by Judge Charles H. Donahue in Norfolk Superior Court, today.

Atty. William W. Risk argued for a new trial on the grounds that Comerford had no counsel when tried last April and while his companion was freed on the same charges, Comerford was given no aid. Atty. Wilfred M. Wilbar opposed the motion. Comerford was found guilty of taking the car from an auto ride and attempting to assault them.

SEES END OF ZONING NEAR BOYLSTON STREET

That the decision of the Supreme Court, sustaining the board of appeals in authorizing the Ritz Carlton Hotel to build to a height of 155 feet, has virtually destroyed the 100-foot limitation within one-half block of Boylston street, was the opinion of Lincoln Bryant, town counsel of Milton, at the conference of Massachusetts Board of Appeal today at the State House.

While the speaker admitted that the hotel may be a good thing, he saw danger in the decision in that it may lead to uses of land which might be harmful to the community and thus defeat the purpose of the zoning ordinances.

SAM'L PUTNAM DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Stricken with a heart attack as he was about to leave for work, Samuel Putnam of the accounting department of the Boston Evening American, died suddenly today at his home, No. 54 Wheatland avenue, Dorchester. He was sixty-two years old.

Born in Templeton, Mr. Putnam moved with his parents to Leominster, where he was educated. After leaving school he was employed for a time as a bookkeeper in the Whitestone Mills at Clinton. He was a member of the Clinton Lodge of Masons and the Odd Fellows.

CAME TO BOSTON

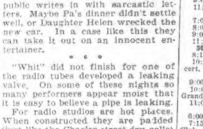
In 1904 when the Boston Evening American was started, Mr. Putnam gave up his position in the Blackstone Mills and accepted a position in the accounting department.

Mr. Putnam made it a practice daily to bowl in a Summer street alley for exercise. Two years ago he contracted a cold which developed into asthma. Recently he complained of a smothering sensation and received medical attention. His illness did not interfere with his work. He appeared in the best of spirits at work yesterday and joked and laughed with his shopmates.

SUDDEN ILLNESS

While getting ready for work today he complained of a sudden illness to his wife, Elizabeth, who summoned a physician. He died shortly afterward.

The body will be taken to Waterman's Chapel on Commonwealth avenue today. Funeral services will be held there Tuesday afternoon. Besides a wife, Elizabeth, he leaves a son, Gerald, who recently graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.



JUST AS WE were sitting down to a slash off another masterpiece, we were interrupted by a messenger boy of the usual sort—faded, out of tune and with much stalle. But this boy had traveled from our friend, WHIT. So no disappoint "Whit" we read the message.

We agreed with him. Radio personality doesn't get over self-pretentious for the dear old listening public writes in with sarcastic letters. But when they don't settle well, or Laughter Helen wrecked the new car. In a case like this they can take it out on an innocent entertainer.

"Whit" did not finish for one of the radio tubes developed a leaking valve. On some of these nights as many performers appear moist that it is easy to believe a pipe is leaking. For radio studios are full of pipes. When constructed they are padded (just like the Charles street dry cells) and windows and doors are not used. We do not mean that the performers are kept through a sort of dog door entrance, but the inside effect is the same.

* * *

Now while the perspiring artist is working we sit in front of the loud speaker in our leisure. We can't smoke or wear our hat because there is no usher. If we don't like the music we can say right out loud, "That's terrible." All we hear is the voice coming out of the speaker.

On the other end is the artist wearing a hard shirt with a starched collar and generally uncomfortable in his Sunday togs.

He has lights, musical instruments, microphone, beautiful women about, and all the many attractions of a theatre. We sit at our leisure listening to a thing that looks like a small keg. (When we opened the thing there was only a small watch inside.)

Now we don't generally get thrilled at hearing a mere voice. Our wife's voice we hear enou—, but that's another of the subject. Anyway, when we see a man on the stage he is all there. Nobody ever saw a loud speaker wear a pair of pants, did they? Nobody ever saw a loud speaker get up and prance around like Jack Donahue.

And loud speakers don't come adorned with funny faces or hands that shiver and shake. That's what is the matter with radio.

When the great scientists like Phillips Carlin and Gray MacNamee invent something so that they will fill this crying want. We don't want it bad enough to pay for it, but sometimes the things we hear make us feel like crying.

MUSIC CLUB WINNER TO BE HEARD ON RADIO

Four youthful artists, winners in the National Federation of Music Clubs' competition in the State of Massachusetts, will be heard in a special concert program from WEEI tonight at 10:10. These local Artists were selected over a large group of contestants at the elimination contest held in Steinert Hall Wednesday morning, and arrangements have been completed for this broadcast through Mrs. Mary G. Rood, in charge of the local committee for the National Federation of Music Clubs. Each of the four winners, including vocal, piano and violin, will be heard Saturday in two concert numbers. The winners to be heard are Miss Norma Jean Erdman, soprano, and James R. Houghton, baritone.

A&P
THANK YOU
Two weeks ago the A & P announced that its stores in Boston and vicinity would close at nine o'clock on Saturdays.
The response of the public to these new hours has been most gratifying.
Early shopping has become the rule.
Without the co-operation of our customers, it would have been impossible for our managers to have this extra time.
WE THANK YOU

These Sport Photos Prove Spring Is at Hand

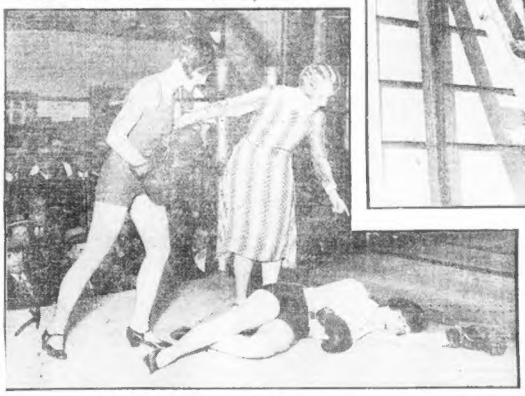
DEFENDERS of the Boston Bruins' net. Billy Coutu and Lionel Hitchman, who comprise the reserve defense of the local hockey team.

JACK SURROUNDS AN OYSTER. Jack Bentley of the New York Giants takes a moment off from baseball to dive into a load of oysters fresh from the beach at Sarasota, Fla. Jack likes to play ball, but he also likes sea food, and who wouldn't? (I.N.R.)

DOC LIKES THE DELANEYS! Here is the well-known Dr. Fralick of New York with Jack Delaney, light heavyweight champion, and Mrs. Delaney. Jack is as happy as a kid over the recovery of his wife from her illness, and is taking her home for a rest. Then he'll let Dr. Fralick perform an operation on his own elbow and thumb. (I.N.R. photo.)

RISKS outside the ring are taken by Jack Sharkey, Boston's heavyweight contender, who climbs a rickety ladder to smear paint on the eaves of his Brighton residence.

SPRING IS HERE! This is the real omen. George H. Ruth, sometimes known as Babe, caught in the act of giving the horsehide a long ride.



THE FLYING WRISTLOCK as demonstrated by members of the University of Pennsylvania's wrestling team. C. S. Martin and Captain George MacDonald are illustrating this hold for you. They are preparing for the intercollegiate championships. (I.N.R.)

K.O.'D CHORINE! Kathryn Ellis floored in second round of her bout with Ethel Lawrence at Stillman's Gym. The girls are all from the "Queen High" company, and are battling for the championship of Broadway in the gentle art of self-defense. Ethel has some wallop. (INR)

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

FINALS AT LONGWOOD TODAY

Mrs. G. W. Wightman Has Chance to Win Title in All Three Divisions

The singles, doubles and mixed doubles champions in the women's national indoor tennis tourney will be crowned today on the covered courts of the Longwood Club, Chestnut Hill.

Mrs. George W. Wightman, a former champion in all three classes of competition, has a chance to win three titles, having won her way to the finals in each division.

In the singles she, the veteran and from Brookline will match her ability against Miss Margaret Blake.

Paired with Mrs. G. W. Wightman, Mrs. Wightman will face Miss Edith Sigourney and Miss Blake in the doubles finals.

In the mixed doubles, Mrs. Wightman and G. P. Gardner will be opposed by Miss Sarah Palfrey and Malcolm Hill.

The singles finals will be a test of youth and speed vs. experience and confidence. Miss Blake is several years younger than her opponent and should tire in almost every department of the game. Mrs. Wightman, after twenty years of competition on the courts, knows every trick of the game and she has beaten Miss Blake so many times in the past that she is bound to enter the match with a psychological advantage.

Mrs. Wightman and Mrs. Shannon are slightly favored to defeat Misses Blake and Sigourney in the doubles.

Miss Sarah Palfrey, one of the youngest players in the tourney, and Malcolm Hill, who was a school boy net sensation a few years back, are thought to have an even chance against their more experienced opponents. Mrs. Wightman and G. P. Gardner, in the mixed doubles.

GOLF URGED FOR ARMY OFFICERS

A bulletin issued by Colonel J. E. Woodward, Adjutant-General of the First Corps Area, announces that all officers of the Regular Army and the National Guard are invited to become members of the Army Golf Association.

The Association has headquarters in Washington and embraces officers' clubs in the entire country. This year, it is hoped that every officer able to wield a golf club will join the association.

In the First Corps Area has much good golf material among its officers. Last year however, there were only a handful of players who took in the tryout for the army championship. This season the First Corps Area is going to put in a strong bid for the title.

The object of the Army Golf Association, as expressed in a memorandum sent to all potential members, is to promote interest among members of the Army in this good international game, to arrange tournaments at certain times during the year almost all over the country. The encouragement of golf by the Army is only another evidence of the tendency toward the sport has gained throughout the country in the past few years.

As an exercise, it provides all the stimulation necessary without dangerous strain. It is possible, too, an opportunity for relaxation and companionship that no other game offers.

And this game is growing so rapidly that golf courses are found in nearly all garrisons in a city's recreation facilities as playgrounds.

Medford High Won't Play in Chicago

Headmaster J. Stocton Kaiser, Medford High School, has notified the Chicago University authorities conducting the national interscholastic basketball tournament that Medford High School would not be a competitor.

His reasons for withdrawing Medford are directly traceable to the ruling rules that govern this tournament. Under the tournament code, Medford would have to compete without two of its best players. The added thought that the boys would have to lose more than a week's class work also influenced the Medford headmaster in declining the invitation.

INTERCOLLEGIATE POLO DATES SET FOR JUNE

New York, March 19 (A.P.)—Dates for the annual polo tournament of the Eastern Intercollegiate Association, comprising Yale, Princeton, Harvard, West Point and Pennsylvania Military Academy, have been set for later part of June, probably from the 15th to 25th inclusive.

The matches in which each team will play one game with each of the other entries, will be staged at the Meadow-Brook Country Club, Rye, N. Y.

Representatives of the colleges re-elected Alvin Devereux head of the association yesterday. Major A. V. Arnold of Yale, Captain F. C. Periphet of Princeton, Major John R. Wohan of Harvard, Major A. W. Holderness of West Point, and Colonel F. K. Hyatt of Penn Military were named to the executive committee.

Junior Tennis Stars Play First Round

New York, March 19 (A.P.)—Decisive victories by junior stars today featured the opening round of singles play in the men's national indoor tennis championships at the seventh Regiment Armory.

Julius Seligson of New York, national indoor junior champion, triumphed over T. F. Mattman, New York, 6—1, 6—1, while Eddie Jacobs of Baltimore, former boys' titleholder, vanquished C. B. Peters, New York, 6—4, 6—2.

Other first round results: Kenneth Appel, Princeton University, defeated K. W. Stelle, New York, 6—0, 6—1. Louis B. Dailey, Jr., New York, defeated M. Mahr, New York, 6—2, 6—0. Edward McCahill, Jr., Yonkers, N. Y., defeated K. B. Jackson, New Haven, Ct., 6—3, 6—3.

JAKE SAYS PENNOCK MUST SIGN OR GET OUT

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 19 (I.N.S.)—Colonel Jake took the offensive today in the Ruppert-Pennock financial war, with the declaration that the Yankees' star southpaw would be "cast adrift" if he does not come to terms by the mid dle of next week.

LATE START FOR SHOE CITY TEAM

Baseball practice at Lynn Classical High will not start until April 1.

Coach Joyce explains the late start by the fact that most of his ball players have been active in track and basketball during the Winter and that he wants to give them a couple of weeks to rest up in.

Lynn Classical won the championship of the North Shore League a year ago, but its chances of repeating this Victory this coming season are believed to be slight. Captain Hostetler, star second sacker on last season's team, has joined the Lynn New England League club.

Nowe Hawkins, star all-round hurling pitchers at Classical, were both graduated last June, which makes it necessary for Coach Joyce to look for pitching talent. He is a forunate in having Sam Mannow, third string pitcher a year ago, who helped Howe and Russell pitch Classical to thirteen straight wins.

Hub Boxers Favored to Win in Nationals

Cincinnati, O., March 19 (I.N.S.)—Nearly 100 amateur pugilists from almost every State in the Union gathered here today to compete in the nation's annual amateur boxing championships, the Junior Champ ionship Tourney—which will get under way here tonight.

Fifty preliminary bouts, of three rounds each, will be run off tonight and the finals will be held Monday.

The Boston and Pittsburgh fighters ruled the favorites here today.

WIDE TO MAKE ANOTHER TRY

Philadelphia, March 19 (A.P.)—An attempt to break the world's 2,000 meter indoor record by Edvin Wide, famous Swedish runner will feature the program tonight of the annual Meadowbrook Club's track meet in the Arena, when more than 500 college, school and club athletes are entered.

Wide, who has been training night was beaten by Lloyd Hahn, of the Boston A. A., in a mile race, were Johnny Romig, former Penn State and Olympic distance runner, and several other stars in the 2,000 meter handicap. The record of 8 minutes 24 2-5 seconds for the event was established several years ago by Paavo Nurmi.

BURCH AND CONACHER ARE RE-INSTATED

New York, March 19 (A.P.)—Billy Burch, captain, and Lionel Conacher, star defense man of the New York Americans, who were suspended recently for violating training rules, were re-instated today and that they may play tomorrow night in the fourth and last match of the series between the New York Rangers at Madison square garden.

SCOTLAND RUGBY TEAM BEATS ENGLAND, 21-13

Edinburgh, Scotland, March 19 (A.P.)—Scotland defeated England in a rugby football match here today, 21-13. The defeat of England makes Ireland the international rugby champion.

Rugby matches between England and Scotland began in 1872. Each has won 29 games in the series and nine have been drawn.

Maloney Maintains Slight Lead Over Sharkey in Voting

The merry battle of ballots between the supporters of Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney continues with the South Boston heavyweight holding a slight lead.

The vote now stands:

Maloney, 760; Sharkey, 752.

One peculiar thing about the standing is the fact that 767 votes have been cast that Sharkey wins the decision and as many that Maloney comes through a victor by the decision route.

In the early voting, Maloney's backers were picking him to score a knockout. Jim is now receiving credit for being a clever boxer as well as a tremendous puncher.

It will be another month before the rival heavyweights start training for their New York bout. Both are young and always keep in perfect condition. They will not require more than a month to put themselves on edge for the battle in the Yankee Stadium.

Make out your ballot today and mail it to the Sporting Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston.

State Cup Soccer Tilt at Walpole Street

By BILL McAULEY.

Hub soccer fans are getting the gravy just at present, for in the next three Saturdays, Walpole street will be the scene of cup tie, no dear to the heart of every booting fan.

Today it is the semi-final of the State Cup with the Whittalls Carpet eleven of Worcester clashing with the Lusitania eleven from Cambridge.

Next Saturday will see the Woodside eleven opposing the Fall River eleven in the first round of the National Cup and the following week comes the biggest game of all, the final of the American Cup, in which the Wanderers meet Brooklyn.

Today's game should be a humdinger as the Whittalls are the champions of the Western part of the State and the Lucy Rec's are just about in that class around the Hub.

The Whittalls are favorites to reach the final but we would not be surprised to see the Cambridge eleven which is composed of players who learned their soccer in the Azores, come through.

The winners will be stacked up against the winners of the other semi-final which has Fore River and Linn One paired.

Inside Golf

By CHESTER HORTON

For the cutshot approach you should never use more than a half swing back. Avoid the cutshot attempt when using mashie-niblick or niblick. These irons have plenty of loft for backspin without any attempt to add to them, and doing so will tend to complicate strains unnecessarily, a thing always to be avoided in good golf. To cut strokes a golfer with a heavy-lofted club will merely make it go higher. And in swinging the club diagonally across the ball, from the outside in, be careful not to jerk inward with your arms just as the clubhead goes through. Let the arms pass through freely, just as if the cut-stroke was not being made. In the address exert a tendency to make the left wrist bend downward so that the clubhead will stand partly on its lead. Let your aim be to hit the ball more toward the heel of the club rather than in the center of the blade. And hold your head and body still—be very careful not to lunge forward with the body, which will, if you so lunge, spoil the whole effort.

RedSoxandPelicansin Fourth Clash Today

By BILL GRIMES.

New Orleans, La., March 19.—Having turned the New Orleans Pelicans back three times, the Red Sox are looking forward to keeping their slate clean by chalking up another victory over the Southern League champions this afternoon.

Slim Harriss, who has shown that he is further advanced than any of the other Red Sox pitchers will start on the mound for the locals today. Slim is counted on to win three games regardless of the condition he is in, and the Pelicans will probably assume an all fog attitude.

Young, Delirious, Cries 'I Must Join My Team'

"There's lots of time for me to get there before the [illegible] I'm going to join my team."

Those were the words uttered by York Gehrig as he lay delirious in a hospital bed while Death hovered near to claim him.

Desperately ill with Bright's disease and complications, the brilliant player clings to life, his only thought that he must join his team.

Young is now in the Physicians and Surgeons Hospital at San Antonio, Tex. He first became ill last October, and since that time has been confined to his bed. An attack of intestinal influenza made his condition almost hopeless.

His teammates send him messages daily. These serve to cheer him up, but he longs to be back with the squad. Doctors think he will never be able to play ball again, even if he does recover.

"Come to the point, man," said Vishnil, harshly. "What is it you propose?"

"To buy this man Jefferies."

"How much does he want?"

"I think we could get him for 20,000 pounds."

"If you think that, why didn't you give it him?"

"I offered it him, but he refused. In any case he said he would not deal with me, and he wanted to see ..."

Letting It Drop

By Percy Crosby

YOU ARE WHAT YOU MAKE YOURSELF IN THIS WORLD

Numerous changes begin with the new year.

No matter how happy and contented you may be in the job by which you earn your living, you should consider whether its remuneration and possibilities for advancement justify your continuing it.

If you feel that you ought to do better, keep that thought in your mind enough so that you will recognize opportunities to do better with increasing pay or salary.

Of course, if you are not giving your best in the place where you are, you do not deserve an increase in wages.

If you are not practicing at doing your best every day you would not be able to keep up a higher standard where you must work harder to earn more.

It is not always the place that makes the man; more often it is the man that makes the place worth while.

By Evelyn Walsh

"YOUR [illegible] other [illegible] is that of a [illegible]. Your grace is only matched by the symmetry of its [illegible], your [illegible] by the pink flush on its marble [illegible] when the morning sun caresses its dizzy [illegible]. And I, I am [illegible] worshipper glad only to be allowed to gaze from afar at the holy place wherein your spirit dwells."

This outburst from the lips of a [illegible] girl [illegible] near the bridge on the outer drive at Lincoln Park. Their mad chase from North avenue, one ahead then the other, was unobserved except by a silent bird perched on a solitary ice floe, relic of January days just past. Even he, deciding the [illegible]

"[illegible] I don't [illegible] It [illegible] goodness knows."

"No, I won't tell you a thing, but I have a better plan, there is an [illegible] over at the Field Museum [illegible] go there after [illegible]"

"Yes it will be fun. Come let us hurry. The spring, saucy boy, is hiding again and Connie is cold. I'll race you to the end of the drive, then we must get a bus as mother is expecting me."

That night, visions of the merrow kept creeping in as Constance tried to woo the coy gnomes of slumber. This would be another link binding her to the boy, first music, the nights in the gallery at the opera. It was so much more inspiring there surrounded by rapt faces than below in the boxes with their [illegible] gowned women, and restive [illegible] men.

Then the treasured hours in the Art Institute, the mutual enthusiasm for Michael Angelo, and for Millet. Of course, the boy knew a hundred times more than she did. She only knew that she liked a thing. He knew why, knew the [illegible] of the artist and their [illegible] in his work.

The love of outdoors, their walks through the park, his eager interest in horses because she loved them, everything was drawing them closer.

Last, the trip to the court house, his practical knowledge of the law which to her was just a fascinating new text book to be conquered as history, math and English, seemed to make him a necessary part of her new life.

Books, too, his opinion of Floyd Dell, Ben Hecht, F. Scott Fitzgerald matched hers in enthusiasm and dislike.

What if her family did think their radically different religious beliefs a barrier? It wasn't to them so what matter? If he asked her again to marry him, should she elope? He had asked her parents and they had played for time, pleading that she was so young.

He had suggested a honeymoon in England, both taking a post-graduate course at Oxford. That alone would be sufficient inducement if there were no love at all. But love was there, too, glorious love!

She had admitted that to herself. She did love him and tired nature, as if satisfied, asserted itself and sleep came.

The visit next day was important not for the awed admiration inspired by the model of the beautiful temple, but for something far more vital. As they were both gazing at a queer fashioned ring of Tibet their cheeks touched, and then he had her in his arms. First he kissed her, then the warmth of his boy lips struck a spark in her and she kissed him with an ardor that is seldom ever recaptured. Screened by the parallel exhibition cases, they gazed into each other's eyes.

"Connie, dear, I love you. I want you so."

"Yes, boy, and I know now that I love you."

"Say it again, oh! darling, darling."

"No, no, come little boy, let us look at some more of the wonders of Asia," teased the young imp.

"Do you know that you are Peter Pan, Queen Elizabeth and Saint Cecelia all in ten minutes, you fascinating minx?"

"Really, it is late, and we'll never get a bus. What shall we do tomorrow? I should like to go to the courthouse again. Take me to Judge Horner's court, to see how probate works. James Joseph certainly makes wills a fascinating subject."

"I'm at your command, as always. I'm wealthy this week. May I also take you to luncheon?" smiled the boy.

"We'll see, maybe I have a date with someone else for luncheon. No, you can't ride home with me, it is too late," she commanded from the platform of a 51, which was waiting for the red light at Jackson.

Next day, as they were exploring the courthouse, they came to the second floor, where they were greeted by several old men, runners for different judges.

"Right this way, Marriage License Bureau. I'll take you right to a judge. No trouble at all. Come on don't be bashful," as the young couple sought safety in flight.

"Jerry, shall we? My family is going to be awfully hard to manage."

"Constance Marie Latham, do you mean it? Would you really?" gasped the boy.

"Mean it! I'm just talking to give you a scare. How much money have you?"

"Twenty-five dollars. Would that do? Oh! Connie, I can't believe it. I love you, girl. I'll——"

"Yes, well come on we have to get a ring. You better act quickly before I begin thinking too much. I'll call Gen who works in the Conway Building and you get Maurie. He is in the Ashland Block, isn't he?"

"You call them both while I get a license. Is your birth registered upstairs?" asked the boy.

"Yes, but not under my name, just as a female child born to my parents, in 1903, April 16," she answered.

"I'll be back here at this 'phone booth in ten minutes, don't get cold feet and run, now," said the [illegible]

"All right, honey, I won't."

Maurie and Gen promised to meet them in the Randolph Street entrance in half an hour, and as Constance finished her calls, Jerry bounded into the booth.

"I've got it! Now for the ring! There is a place just across the street. I have $23 left."

They rushed over, and found a tiny platinum hoop carved with orange blossoms which fitted the pocket book.

Gen and Maurie were thrilled and excited, but the judge seemed to take it rather as a matter of course, and after what seemed a very simple ceremony for so momentous an occasion, Connie was Mrs. Gerald Norton, Jr., with a career and marriage combined before her.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

TWO hundred well-known business men have just formed a mutual protective association for alimony payers.

THEY'RE trying to cut down the high cost of separate maintenance.

THEY want more courtships and fewer marriages.

ENGAGEMENTS should be made permanent.

ONE of the charter members is trying to get the automobile club to put dancer signs in the municipal building.

OUR city halls should be made safe for bachelors.

FOUNTAIN pens in the marriage license bureau should be equipped with stop-lights.

WE have safety gates at railroad crossings, why not put them in front of altars?

LOVE at first sight is wonderful, but thelaw should force a couple to take another look.

ONE fellow wants the churches to do away with wedding bells and use fog horns.

SOME men are more successful at marriage than others. There's a man in Chicago who makes such a good husband that he's been married seven times.

OF course he's very wealthy and can afford to keep himself in circulation.

BUT seven wives is a large payroll for any man.

HIS separate maintenance checks are so large that some of the lottery companies are using his alimony figures instead of bank clearings.

BUT he doesn't care, he realizes that a check book a day keeps the lawyer away.

HE got worried last month, however. Somebody told him that his ex-wives were going to incorporate.

HIS in-laws are busy framing up the by-laws.

MOST men laugh at separate maintenance. They figure that alimony is a joke until they get behind in one of the installments.

Mrs. Solomon Says---

By HELEN ROWLAND.

MY Daughter, how strange is the way of a man with his moneys!

For, lo, if a woman be a Gold Digger, even the wallet of a Tight-wad will open like a flower at her command.

But she that considereth his purse and saketh nothing shall receive nothing, not even his gratitude. For he cannot understand her.

When a damsel loadeth a man to the Ritzy Restaurant and demandeth tarioles and orchids and boxseats, he completh eagerly with all her wishes, and rebelleth not. For he feareth her scorn, and dreadeth to be called "Cheap Skate."

But for her who saith, "Let us dine at some QUIET little place, and sit in the First Balcony," ANYTHING is good enough. And, in time, she shall find herself demoted to a sandwich and a movie.

Behold a man will set his nose to the grindstone, and labor all the days of his life to cover a foolish and extravagant wife with sables and pearls and chiffons and imported millinery. For every man delighteth to play Santa Claus to a Dumbbell.

But unto the "efficient" wife who payeth all her own bills and goeth "fifty-fifty," he oftentimes begrudgeth the price of a birthday-gift and the cost of a pair of theatre tickets. For the woman who can "take care of herself" will always be permitted to be her OWN Santa Claus! Her "independence" closeth up the pores of a man's generosity, and is as ice upon the skin of his tenderness.

Likewise, a woman will take pity upon a POOR man, and will cheerfully follow him to the cheap table d'hote and pay for her own theatre ticket. Yea, to the wastrel and the never-do-well she will lend freely of her hard-earned moneys; and joyfully feed the "hard-up" at her own table.

Verily, verily, Poverty is a love charm! For when a man and a woman have not a penny between them, then they have naught to wrangle about.

And the first sign of war between the sexes is the DOLLAR SIGN! SELAH.

INCURABLE WOUNDS

By LUCY LOWELL.

"THE wound caused by the lancehead is curable, but the wound caused by the tongue cannot be cured."

An Arabian proverb which might do much to solemnize our hearts—we Americans who make a boast of our frank and fearless speaking.

Frankness is a wonderful thing, the fearless word spoken fairly without malice, in the right manner and at the right time is forceful and good. For it is truth and there is nothing greater than love.

The frankness which carries power to help alike the one who uses it and those at whom it is directed cannot be without something of love. Remove that and you remove every vivacious and uplifting element from the speech, no matter how wise may be the motive behind it.

The fact is that so much of the frankness we pride ourselves upon is merely the expression of irritation or criticism or anger. It causes the wound that cannot be cured, for it is the deadly venom that tips the unbridled tongue.

Every kind of beast and of birds and of serpents and of things in the sea is tamed, and hath been tamed of mankind," said St. James the Gentle. "But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison."

The thing which cannot be tamed is that upon which a watch must be set. Even the most ferocious creatures may be found and so controlled.

Do not underestimate the importance of watching your tongue. Remember the word of Solomon: "Whoso keepeth his mouth and his tongue keepeth his soul from troubles."

Rich From Real Estate; Standard Oil Opens Purse

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, March 19.—Real estate has made more millionaires than any other line of business. I talked recently with two of them, very different, very interesting.

One, fatherless at five and an orphan at 13, has just taken out almost a million and a half additional insurance, bringing the total on his life to above $3,000,000.

B. C. Forbes

His first office-boy job netted him less than $3 a week. But he exercised extraordinary energy. I know no man who more closely resembles perpetual motion. He vibrates every moment. He radiates enthusiasm. His tongue keeps pace with his brain and body.

He is Joseph P. Day, New York's famous real estate auctioneer and operator.

THE OTHER is Dr. Charles A. Paterno. Care of a modest piece of real estate was wished on him while he was still a medical student. He made a thrilling profit. But to do so he had to accept, in part payment, other property. His real estate responsibilities took part of his time, but he was determined to become a full-fledged doctor. He did, but never had a patient.

But the second real estate venture netted such an intoxicating return that he found himself drawn deeper and deeper and deeper into that line of activity. By the time the average young doctor is earning enough to keep body and soul together Dr. Paterno was well on the highway to millionairedom. Now he thinks nothing of entering deals involving millions.

He is almost as live a wire as Mr. Day, only he takes more time for play. Andrew Carnegie said that millionaires seldom smile. This is totally untrue of these two. Both appear to enjoy life hugely.

* * *

BUSINESS sentiment is perking up. Wall Street, too, has displayed cheerfulness. Thus far the optimists have had the better of the pessimists in the stock market.

But there are two or three bull pools which have carried their pets dangerously far. If you have enough money or credit, you can force any stock skywards. But it is another thing to get the public to take the inflated shares off your hands. There's the rub.

WHEN THE Rockefellers dominated Standard Oil, they paid out little in dividends. They reinvested profits in their properties. Thus Standard Oil grew bigger and bigger, richer and richer. The Rockefellers and their chief associates, millionaires all, were in no hurry to get and spend all the profits.

That has changed. The Standard Oil Company today must think not only of the Rockefellers and other millionaire stockholders. They must think of the tens of thousands of small investors holding Standard Oil shares, and they must think particularly of the tens of thousands of their own workers whose savings have gone into the shares. Workers want as much as possible in hard cash. They are less interested in plowing back profits year after year to fatten the property for the benefit of a coming generation.

Last quarter Standard Oil companies paid record-breaking dividends. The old-time policy of niggardly dividends doesn't fit the revolutionized conditions of stock ownership. Small investors like to eat their cake.

* * *

IN CERTAIN Western cities whenever a street is torn up or a sidewalk is rolled off in connection with the building of a new structure, placards are posted reading "Signs of Progress." That's supposed to mollify feelings ruffled by the inconvenience caused.

Seattle, the live city of the progressive Northwest, announces the opening of a stock exchange. Another sign of progress!

IT WILL be time enough to agitate for a five-day week once the seven-day week has been abolished. This is the worst blot on America's industrial civilization—if you can apply the word "civilization" to any industry or institution compelling its employes to work every day of the year.

* * *

SUGGESTION for employers: If you haven't already done so, arrange to give all your workers—not only the collar-and-cuff ones—a vacation this Summer, with pay.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Control Your Mind

The Rest Is Easy

MENTAL HAZARDS—THAT INFERIORITY COMPLEX.

This picture by Strothmann, in Charles Dana Gibson's LIFE, has a meaning in many things, from golf to geometry, and from infancy to old age.

The golf player, trying to "sink" his ball in a cup three feet away, will miss his shot because "Old Man Doubt" is sitting on his back whispering, "You'll never make it."

In every way, except mentally, this golf player is better than the fat man standing beside him. But the fat man HAS CONFIDENCE IN HIMSELF. He thinks he is great, even as a golf player.

He isn't a good golf player, but self-confidence makes him about one hundred per cent. better than he is naturally.

Lack of self-confidence, or rather lack of MENTAL SELF-CONTROL, makes the young man, putting, fifty per cent. WORSE than he naturally is.

And this applies to millions of us that go through life, MISSING OUR SHOTS, remaining in the "dub" class, because we start off thinking we CAN'T do it, and so we can't.

Your golf teacher tells you "to loosen up." He doesn't want your muscles stiff, nerves tense. He asks you to swing loosely and easily, to "follow through"—in short, not to be nervous.

The whole secret of success in life is to "loosen up" IN YOUR MIND. That is where tightness, doubt, nervousness, play havoc with our chances.

Does anybody doubt that lack of self-confidence prevents success? Put a heavy plank six inches wide on the ground, and ask one hundred men to walk the length of it. Every one of them will do it and wonder at your questioning their ability to do it.

Raise the same plank fifty feet in the air, from one building to another, and ask the hundred men to walk it. Ten perhaps will have the nerve to do it.

Put that plank across a chasm one thousand feet deep, and probably not one of the ten will dare walk across it. If the hundred were compelled by tyrannical power to make the attempt, probably ninety of them would fall, although every one of them could walk it PERFECTLY EASILY if he could retain his self-confidence and mental self-control, as when the plank was on the ground.

This is a useful picture, and, when Charles Dana Gibson prints it, he ought to print an editorial with it, like this one, only shorter and better. Mr. Martin could write it for him, much shorter and much better.

Old Age Has Value

Don't Underestimate It

Dr. Nicoll, New York State's Health Commissioner, says it is a mistake and unfortunate for men to go on living for long years after they have ceased to be useful. His fellow New Yorker, Mr. Voorhees, in his 98th year, attends every day to his business as President of the Bureau of Elections Chauncey Depew, who will be 100 in a little while, says he intends to go on with life anyhow. Mr. Meeker, working to help the Oregon Trail Memorial, who is 97, says he wants to live as long as he can see.

There is no useless period in healthy old age. A very old man whose age proves his self-control and wise living is valuable if only as an example.

When Opportunity Knocks

The Prosperous Are Too Busy. Luckily

Mr. Feather, finance philosopher, says, "Opportunity never seems to knock except when we are extremely busy." That is usually the case with IMPORTANT men, and fortunately it puts a limit to their growth.

A man who has succeeded ENOUGH for the good of the world and his own, in money or otherwise, is too busy to listen to something that would make him succeed TOO MUCH.

There is the famous case of Napoleon, on the edge of the English Channel, trying to get to England in spite of adverse winds. He gave just three minutes to "that American" and didn't listen. The American, who happened to be Fulton, could have told him how to build steamboats and get to England regardless of the wind. That would have been a bad thing for the history of the world. It is fortunate that Napoleon was too busy!

The Rivals

SEEING INVISIBLE IS NOW POSSIBLE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

SCIENTISTS are not content with showing us how we can talk along a wire, but now one of them, Dr. Donald C. Stockbarger, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, shows us how we can see the invisible.

An automobile headlight, for instance, can be apparently entirely dark, but will flood the highway with ultra-violet rays. When these rays strike a fluorescent substance that substance will leap into visibility.

In this way the glare of automobile lights need not be necessary. Even pedestrians can have on fluorescent clothes, so that when the violet rays from the automobile headlights strike them, they will be visible.

Dr. Stockbarger says that all this may come by the year 2000. He illustrated his views by showing a headlight which revealed fences, bridges and scenery otherwise invisible. They all glowed when the light was thrown upon them.

Mr. Alexander Graham Bell tried this experiment over a half century ago, but did not succeed.

It was also recently shown how a human voice could go through the ether on a beam of ultra-violet light. By putting the hand or other object into the path of the light beam the sound ceased. When the obstruction was withdrawn the speaking commenced again.

It is suggested that these ultra-violet rays may have quite an influence upon the health and that arrangements may be made so they can play undiminished upon the human form with beneficial effects.

The rays are also useful in reading aged and obliterated documents and by detecting checks which have been changed by erasing with chemicals or with rubber.

Thus slowly the experiments of the chemist's laboratory are coming into practical use and having an economic significance.

One of the beneficial effects of chemical discovery is that rubber can be protected by paint from the sun, as rubber which is exposed to the sun's rays is often injured.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

WANDERLUST

OFFICER LEO CURRAN of the BRIGHTON division can appreciate the feelings of a proud though irate father, the next time he gathers in a tot seized with wanderlust. Making his regular call from his beat, recently, he was told by CAPTAIN ANDERSON that LEO JR., not yet seven, was in tow at the BROOKLINE police station, having strayed away from the CURRAN home tiles. With the sanction of the skipper, he made the trip to BROOKLINE to take his own charge into custody. "When this cop got me," explained the little fellow, "I tolu him my father was a cop too, and CAPTAIN ANDERSON knew him!" LEO SR. "sentenced" the youthful traveler to ten days confinement at No. 9 Heffernan street, without even a hearing.

COT HIS LAW OFFICE.

A cot in the Newton Hospital has been the law office of ATTORNEY OLIVER A. WYMAN, income tax and accountancy expert, but he expects soon to be back at his offices in the "Old South." ATTORNEY WYMAN has had a vast amount of work to do in connection with Federal income tax statements. Both secretary and nurse have been at his bedside, while he has been convalescing from an operation, and between dictations he has also found time to carry on telephone conversations.

NOT PINK.

A tomato-colored elephant against a yellow background on a block-print hanging by GILBERT FLETCHER, now being shown at the BOSTON MUSEUM OF FINE ARTS in the Tricennial Exhibition of the Society of Arts and Crafts, is attracting wide attention. Most of MR. FLETCHER'S early designs were ships, but the tomato-colored elephant is in strong contrast. The press on which he made them is the largest ever built by hand.

POLICE EFFICIENCY.

Citizens of Winthrop are warranted in their praise of the town's police department, for the quick, swift action following the attack made on MRS. FLORENCE MORRAD in the Battery Station. With a BOSTON suspect under arrest in REVERE, CHIEF WILLIAM McNEIL and LIEUT. AL. DOUGLAS kept up their hunt for Matthew Carmody, the ex-soldier, and landed him on the charge. And to two officers in the ranks goes a major share of the glory in that PATROLMEN JOHN J. McDONALD and JAMES J. TURNER unearthed much of the evidence tending to convict Carmody with the affair, and in hooking the new suspect they cleared the chief at the BOSTON ELKS CLUB.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

WHY IS THERE SO MUCH TROUBLE BETWEEN MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS?

You've thought of mother's side of the question with much sympathy. Has it ever occurred to you that the daughter might have HER side of the question, also? Would you like to read a normal young-ster's analysis of the immemorial mamma and daughter conflict? Then here it is today from Blonde, just as she handed it to us, red hot from the griddle:

DEAR ELSIE:

Gosh, I've just had another tiff with mother. It's a common enough event, but I'm darned sick of it.

Why is it that mothers, just because they're mothers, are always supposed to be in the right? Never wrong, Elsie? NEVER. If you dare say they are, the whole family holds a convention and the mother boo-hoos and sniffles and says, 'I know I'm nothing but a servant around here. I'm supposed to be the head of the house but (s-s-o-o-sniff—sniff) nobody pays the least attention to what I think, or cares the least bit how I feel.'

Then the whole family looks at the culprit with blazing eyes, and, wow!—talk about catching it!

Not Playing Fair.

Now, Elsie, do you call that playing fair? Shouldn't a grown woman be able to stand a difference of opinion without pulling that kind of stuff? Does the fact that she's a mother entitle her to break all the laws of fair play that way?

Cause don't think I don't love my mother. Elsie, I do love her, but honest, she's just killing all my respect for her by the unfair way she acts and the way she takes advantage of being a mother.

Now, Elsie, I know I'm a flapper, and very headstrong, but I am NOT BAD. I am a good girl and I want to do right. But can my family see IT? NO! If I wear short skirts they say I am going straight to hell. And the way they spy on me—

Mom always says that her daughters have perfect freedom and that it's "our" home, but when a young man of whom she disapproves enters the house, she promptly snubs him and lets him know that he is not wanted. And we are afterward informed of the fact. But if a young man whom she likes comes, she monopolizes his whole time, telling him of her struggles, illnesses, etc., and by the time she has finished, you can bet our prospects with that young man are completely killed.

Mother "Listens" In.

If a young man calls on the phone, mother is standing next to you to hear the entire conversation. She thinks in that way she will keep tabs on her daughter's lives. But, Elsie, one of my sisters gets all her phone calls at the office and meets her friends outside and, of course, mother thinks she knows all about everything she does and approves of her. But I hate that kind of sneaking stuff. I get my calls home here, and when I see mother listening I get so mad I deliberately say things to shock her. I suppose I am terrible, Elsie, but don't you think that a mother should have decent respect for her working daughter's rights?

There are lots of things I disagree with Mom about, and I have fairly told her that I have a mind of my own, but she won't believe it simply because my mind doesn't run in the same groove as hers.

The reason I'm writing this, Elsie, is that I hope some mothers like mine will read it and wake up and realize that mothers ought to play the game fair as well as daughters. Perhaps there wouldn't be half as many wayward girls if mothers acted a little more square and fair at home. BLONDE.

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

AND so you have paid at the last the price which life says men must pay, the price which so long in the past filled your thoughts with alarm and dismay. Through glad years you went, heir to all good, to all song, to all laughter and grace, you were tuned to Earth's merriest mood, like a child with the sun in its face. But now you have paid and the price is the one that you dreaded for long; grief has clutched at your soul like a vise, pain has numbed you to rapture and song. Yet reward will be yours for this woe. Understanding you lacked in the past; now the hearts of the high and the low you can read by your own heart at last!

Life After Death

By Garrett P. Serviss.

"Professor Oliver Lodge represents the life of the universe as an endless evolution, assuming that all things might be reduced to mere ether, but that would be only the completion of a cycle of renewal. Does this idea accord with the sentiment of survival after death?—M. L.

I THINK it does not at all accord with the sentiment of survival after death. That sentiment is based upon the sense of personality.

The idea is also inconsistent with Oliver Lodge's own expressed belief concerning communications with and from the dead. By immortality of the soul is meant endless existence of INDIVIDUAL souls.

You cannot find a real religion cherishing the idea of immortality that does not cling to this individualistic view. This is true alike of Pagan, Mohammedan, and Christian. The "perfect impersonal beatitude" of the Buddhist "nirvana" has no meaning to anyone who longs for conscious existence after death—as does every devotee of any religion that recognizes a God and a future state of personal being.

The Indian's "Happy Hunting Grounds," and the Christian's "Heaven" represents the same longing. It is an irrepressible protest, innate in human consciousness, against the idea that bodily death can destroy a personality which is unable to conceive its own extinction.

The origin of this confidence in continued spiritual existence is not hard to discover. Man perceived that he could lose his hands, arms, legs, eyes, and even more important bodily parts, without in the least affecting his inward, all-commanding self.

When the heart, the brain, or some other essentially vital organ was stricken, though death then followed, yet indications seemed to abound that up to the last moment something within was surviving full sanity—something that escaped the destruction of what had been only its temporary abode.

The Indian saw no reason why his dog, together with the other animals which he hunted here below, should not survive along with him, to chase and be chased in another world.

"By midnight moons, o'er moistening dews,
In habit for the chase arrayed,
The hunter still the deer pursues,
The hunter and the deer—a shade!"

But more sophisticated believers in human immortality have tacitly dropped the animals out of the scene.
